CZAR RECALLS BULGARIAN ENVOY

EXPLOSION ON U. S. DESTROYER

CUMMINGS SPEEDING FOR PORT

The torpedo boat destroyer Cummings, one of the fleet which left Newport yesterday to take part in the war game off the Atlantic coast, caught fire today following an explosion of oil and is speeding to port with the injured.

The Cummings report started when a wireless operator at Portland picked up a message that read something like this:

"U. S. S. Cummings afire; making for Newport at full speed. Two men—"

And then the message trailed off into nothing. The operator did not know whether the two men were injured, killed or what not.

The first intimation that it might all have been just a part of the game came from Washington, when an inquiry at the Navy Department drew this response:

"We are trying to simulate war conditions as much as possible, and for that reason must refuse to give out any information at all until the war game is over.

"If there are any accidents to men we will privately notify their families, but that is all."

The Cummings was built at Bath, Me. She is of 1,020 tons. She carries 326 tons of oil fuel when in cruising trim. Like other vessels of her class, she has four 4-inch guns, eight 18-inch torpedo tubes, and is about 200 feet long.

She can travel 1,000 miles at 20 knots; 4,000 miles at half that speed, and 6,000 miles without replenishing her fuel supply at 10 knots.

She has four funnels, two masts and was laid down in 1912.

Graham's Valet Service Cost $7

Commissioner of Fish and Game George H. Graham of Springfield charged the State $7 for "valet service" on a trip to Washington, he admitted today in testifying at an investigation of his expense accounts before Governor Walsh and the council.

This was the most striking item brought out during the hearing. The Commission on Economy and Efficiency brought this and other charges against Mr. Graham.

Mr. Graham admitted he had two telephones in his house at Springfield, but said he paid for all personal and business calls out of his own pocket, and did not charge them to the State as had been asserted.

Concerning the item for "valet service," Graham said Auditor Pope questioned him about the item, but did not insist on his making a refund.

"I think the Fish and Game Commission is a rotten commission as at present organized," said Mr. Graham at one point in his testimony. "But I took up the job as it is, and I have done the best I could."

WORCESTER, Oct. 5.—Joseph H. Gilmour, leader of the Worcester machinists in their strike, was arrested today while addressing employes of the R. B. Phillips Company at their Gold street plant. Gilmour is charged with obstructing street traffic. He had been warned on previous offenses.

WOMAN IS ROBBERY SUSPECT

John L. Hall, counsel for Mrs. James McMillan of Manchester, today gave out a statement dealing with the $75,000 jewel robbery in which he declared that the so-called "spangle clew" was worthless; that the spangle did not correspond to anything on any garment worn by members of the McMillan household on the night of the theft; and that the insurance company has declared its belief that no person connected with the household was concerned in the robbery, and that the insurance money would be paid.

Every clew thus far brought to light in the investigation of the theft of jewels worth $75,000 belonging to Mrs. James McMillan of Eagle Head, Manchester, points to a woman as the thief, it became known today.

U. S. Senator Henry F. Hollis, His Wife and Children.

The photograph of Mrs. Hollis and the two children, Henry F., Jr., and Anne, was taken several years ago.

Mrs. McMillan is the widow of United States Senator McMillan of Michigan. Her Manchester Summer home, a splendid house in the midst of a 300-acre estate, is considered one of the finest places on the North Shore.

TAKEN FROM SAFE.

The jewels were stolen from a safe in her apartments; and from the safe were also taken two insurance policies belonging to Mrs. Preston Gibson, who sued her husband last May for divorce, and has been living with Mrs. McMillan, her grandmother.

Mrs. McMillan is in retirement at Manchester, but Mrs. Gibson is there and meets all comers. She has had charge in part of arrangements for the investigation of the theft.

Detectives at work on the case convinced themselves, it became known today, that the theft was an "inside job." Further investigation brought to light an article which pointed toward a woman as the thief.

This was an iridescent spangle such as is used for trimming dresses.

DELAY CALLING IN POLICE.

After detectives had worked on the theft for almost two months—the jewels were stolen on the night of August 8 or the morning of August 7

SENATOR HOLLIS IS SUED BY WIFE FOR SEPARATION

Father of Senator Lays Domestic Jar to Clash of Temperaments.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 5.—Senator Henry F. Hollis of New Hampshire was today sued for legal separation and separate maintenance by his wife, Grace Fisher Hollis.

The suit filed here gives abandonment as the ground for desiring a separation.

The suit was not a surprise. Senator and Mrs. Hollis have lived apart for some time. They have a son, Henry F., Jr., in Cornell, and a daughter, Anne, who lives with her mother.

Not the least dramatic feature of the case, however, is the fact that Senator Hollis has disappeared, and that he has vowed never to appear as a witness in the case, nor to submit to questioning.

Mrs. Hollis for some months has been living at Princeton, N. J. Last Spring, it is understood, Senator Hollis proposed to her through a Princeton attorney that she secure a divorce on the ground of desertion.

SHE REFUSED.

Mrs. Hollis flatly refused, and replied by engaging General Frank S. Streeter and instructing him to bring the present suit.

General Streeter has always been

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Customs officials today made the charge that General Villa was gathering a small fleet of speedy steam yachts preparatory to fleeing from Mexico with all his possessions.

'Specs' Corner Tickets for World Series

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 5.—Reserve seat tickets for the World's Series games in the Quaker City can be secured now only through speculators.

The scalpers are taking orders right and left at premiums to be fixed later. Some of them are willing to offer odds that they will have the tickets for delivery Thursday, the day before the game.

The fans in this city are all worked up over the newest "system" of disposing of World's Series tickets. Briefly this is to sell by mail the entire allotment of 11,000 seats to the first applicants, or those among them who asked for not more than two or three sets of tickets.

Announcements of this plan was made yesterday by President Baker of the Phillies, but its full significance did not dawn on the rooters until today.

Settle Arabic Case

CARRIGANS BETTING CHOICE

By FRANK G. MENKE.
Sporting Editor of the International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5. — The Phillies and Red Sox probably will go into battle on Friday in the World's Series duel with the betting at even. There are few betting men who will offer anything better than even money.

The gambling element which bahbled so freely a month ago about wagering 3 to 2 against the Phillies in case they won the pennant seem to have taken to the storm cellars. Fear of Alexander's mighty right arm and the slugging power of Cravath seem to have generated the observance of the "safety first" rule.

The worst odds against the Phillies, so far recorded, have been 13 to 10, but the betting through the Wall Street district today was 6 to 5 on the Red Sox, with tons of Phillie money coming into sight, and increasing reluctance on the part of the Red Sox supporters to back their team.

The Phillies' supporters at first figured they ought to get fairly sizable odds because of the general impression that the Red Sox outclassed the Philadelphia outfit, but the scarcity of Boston money just now is causing the rooters of the National leaguers to grab an offer down to even money on the series.

BANK ON ALEX TO WIN.

Even money was offered today that the Phillies would win the first game if Alexander pitched, but there were no takers and then the price was boosted to 6-5. Later a few bets at this figure were recorded, but the Red Sox followers insisted on odds of 7 to 5.

These were refused, but it seems very likely that the odds on the Phillies to win the first game will go to 7 to 5 and probably 3 to 5 before Thursday night. As is always the rule in pre-series betting, some freak wagers were made today and yesterday. One bet of $100 even was made that Cravath will make at least one home run during the series, and then wagered $500 even that the Phillies will hit for a greater number of total bases during the series than the Red Sox.

OTHER FREAK BETS MADE.

A number of bets at even money were made on the fielding showing of the clubs for the entire series, and a bet of $2500 to $150 was made that the Phillies make more runs during the series than the Red Sox.

One hardy fan offered $100 to $3,000 that Alexander will win every game he pitches, but found no takers.

Picture Stolen From Harvard Is Brought Back

The valuable painting, "A Distant View of Moki Pueblo," by Julian Scott, which was stolen from Peabody Museum on August 12th, has been returned to its place on the wall.

Much mystery surrounds the theft of the painting and its return.

As nearly as could be found out the story is as follows:

After it was discovered the picture had been stolen the matter was reported to the Cambridge police and shortly afterwards the party who took the picture entered into negotiation with the police, offering to return the painting, providing all prosecution proceedings against him be dropped.

The matter was taken up with the Harvard authorities, to whom, it is said, this agreement was satisfactory.

The permission of District Attorney Cochran, which was necessary, was also secured.

It is said that the party who carried away the picture comes of a prominent Cambridge family.

W. P. O'Brien of the Election Board Dead

Election Commissioner William P. O'Brien died early today at his home, No. 82 Julian street, Roxbury, after a long illness. He was president of Mayor Curley's Ward 17 Tammany Club for four years. Last June he was appointed to the Board of Election Commissioners. He was a member of the House of Representatives in 1912 and 1913. He leaves a wife and nine children.

Red Sox-Yankees Game Postponed

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Once again the Red Sox have had to lay off in their last brushing-up campaign previous to opening with the Phillies Friday. Rain spoiled the chances of meeting Donovan's Yankees today, as per program. Manager Carrigan was greatly displeased to think that his men could not get into action this afternoon.

U. S. ISSUE WITH THE KAISER ENDED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, late this afternoon made the following statement:

"The Arabic case has been fully settled to universal satisfaction."

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Following a conference between President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing this afternoon, officials broadly intimated that the submarine controversy between this country and Germany had been entirely cleaned up, and that all danger of a break in diplomatic relations was past.

So optimistic were they that officials declared that a statement on the matter probably would be issued from the White House within a few hours.

It is generally understood that Count von Bernstorff's memorandum, handed to Secretary Lansing today, which in effect completely disavowed the sinking of the Arabic, had satisfied President Wilson.

Secretary Lansing took the memorandum to the White House shortly after noon. He remained with the President until 1 o'clock. He would make no statement when he left except to say that a statement very probably would be issued later by the White House.

ALLIES ARE READY TO STRIKE IN BALKANS

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Authoritative confirmation was obtained today of the statement that the offer of the entente powers to Bulgaria, conditioned on her adherence to the allies in the war, has never been withdrawn.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 5.—Russia broke off diplomatic relations with Bulgaria today.

M. Sazonoff, the Foreign Minister, announced that M. Savinsky, the Russian minister to Sofia, had been recalled. It is believed that hostilities will follow within twenty-four hours. Russia is fully prepared to strike.

The announcement of the recall of the Russian minister to Bulgaria, came at the end of a long statement by the Foreign Minister explaining why the step had been taken. The statement follows:

"The great victories of our allies in the west came as exactly foreseen in the systematic plans of the general staffs. We are sure these victories are only the prelude to yet greater achievements, but whatever happens our determination to continue the struggle, side by side as allies until ultimate triumph comes, is unshakable.

"WILL NEVER DENY CHILD."

"However great may be its aberration, Russia will never deny her child (Bulgaria). She will ever be ready with outstretched arms to her. Bulgaria was constituted to be the faithful and loyal daughter of Russia in case of need, and one of the valorous champions of the Slavic race.

"Everything should have impelled Bulgaria in that direction, her interests, traditions, history and the spontaneous impulses of her heart, but strangers with the souls of adventurers installed themselves in her midst with the purpose of deceiving honest folk and converting them into serdid conspirators.

GREECE RUSHES WAR PLANS; READY TO ATTACK BULGARIA

"The Bulgarian people were thus tirked forward to a monstrous attack against a brother nation—the Serbs. And by what inducement?

"The immediate occupation of Macedonia, although it was already formally understood that Macedonia was to be given to Bulgaria. The Triple Entente powers were to occupy it simply to convince the Bulgarians that it was to be theirs.

"SELLING SLAV PEOPLES."

"To this equitable proposition Bulgaria responds by a sudden mobilization and concentration of troops against Serbia, confessing her deliberate intention of selling the Slav peoples to the Austro-German empires.

"Such acts are repugnant and in the end must rebound to the undoing of their authors. There is but little hope of bringing Bulgaria back to reason."

GREECE RUSHING PREPARATIONS FOR ATTACK ON BULGARS

ATHENS, Oct. 5.—War preparations in Greece are going forward night and day with feverish energy.

Merchant ships are being recalled, first line troops are being moved to the Bulgarian border, reserves are drilling everywhere and Red Cross units are being formed.

There is now near the Bulgarian frontier an army composed of French, British and Greeks. Not far away Serbian troops are massed there the Greek, Serb and Bulgar frontiers meet.

Prince Andrew, brother of King Constantine, and his wife, Princess Alice, have gone to Salonica to do Red Cross work.

Refugees from Bulgaria have reported to the Greek military authorities at Salonica that the Bulgarian general staff has massed a heavy force of cavalry at Enidje, on the railway running from Salonica eastward into Thrace, and also along the Struma valley and around Strumnitza.

Although some of the newspapers have protested against the landing of an allied army on Greek soil, the belief prevails in many quarters that the allied governments entered secretly into an agreement with the Venizelos government before taking this step.

Premier Venizelos, addressing the Chamber of Deputies on Monday, said:

"Greece has a clear-cut treaty obligation toward Serbia which will be punctiously respected, even if this involves our taking a position against Germany. I consider it would be dishonorable for Greece not to conform with her treaty obligation. Moreover, I'm convinced that it is to our interest to range ourselves on the side of the quadruple alliance."

Pro-war newspapers which defend the policies of Premier Venizelos predict that "another glorious era for Greek arms" is about to open. They declare that it is only a matter of time until Bulgaria is forced by the Teutonic allies to attack Serbia, and that Greece must intervene on the side of Serbia in accordance with the agreement which was entered into at the time of the second Balkan war.

CONSTANTINOPLE SOLD TO BULGARIANS, SAYS FORMER TURK ENVOY

By International News Service.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—"The Young Turk party has actually sold Constantinople to the Bulgarians for money," declares Cherif Pasha, former Turkish Ambassador to France, in a signed article in the Matin today. Cherif Pasha is a political exile from Turkey because of his opposition to the policies of the Young Turks, and his statements today were the most sensational that have yet been uttered against Turkey.

"Enver Pasha, the general who commanded the Turks at Lule Burgas in the Balkan war, once said to me:

"'My troops fight magnificently during the day, but at night are demoralized by outside influences.'

"The real Turkey is in Asia, and it is in Asia that you will find the Turks defending their country with the real spirit of patriotism.

"It is not generally known, but during the reign of Abdul Hamid Field Marshal von Der Goltz of the German army offered the Sultan a vast empire for Turkey in Asia, providing certain educational Constantinople. The offer was refused. But the Germans, who are a tenacious people, have succeeded in their design by offering big personal advantages to the Young Turks and to Talaat Bey, the chief of the conspirators.

"The Germans said to the Young Turks: 'If the allies are victorious in the Balkans you will lose Constantinople, which will become Russian. If we are victorious we will reconstitute for you the Islam empire up to its former frontiers. You will get the Russian Asiatic possessions and Egypt and all of Northern Africa, but to be victorious we must help the Bulgarians.'

"But mark this: "If Germany wins Constantinople will belong to the Bulgarians."

PANARETOFF TELLS OF CONFERENCE OF BULGAR LEADERS

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Stephan Panaretoff, Bulgarian minister to the United States, today declared that he knew that the interview between the King of Bulgaria and the leaders of the five parties opposed to Premier Radoslavoff, reported in press dispatches to London, actually did take place. He said he had received advices of the conference, but he did not know whether the stormy scenes reported occurred.

British Chaplain Sees Uplift for Men in the War

The Rev. Dr. W. C. Munifo one of the chaplains of the British army, who at present is visiting in Boston, addressed the ministers in Chipman Hall upon the religious effects of the present war. He said:

"I wish I could tell you all about the bravery of the men in the trenches and how many of them are taking to the deep religious things of life.

"I have given them copies of the New Testament bound in khaki. There have been many wonderful conversions among them. I saw one man kneel down and pray in the trenches. He prayed in silence. The men nearby began to throw dirt at him and otherwise made fun of him, but when they saw he was in earnest they made him speak out his prayer, and pretty soon all in the trenches joined with him.

"This war is bringing the many men of the army nearer and nearer to the real things of life, taking them away from the mere material.

"I was never so much convinced of the power of religious truth as I have been at the sights I have witnessed in the army. About these I should be glad to speak in any of the churches of Greater Boston."

AREA LIKELY TO BE NEW WAR THEATRE

The area of the new complications in the Balkans, hinging upon the action of Bulgaria in relation to the cause of the Teutonic allies, shown in the above map.

1—Odessa, the Russian port on the Black Sea, is the base of a large Russian army which may be thrown against Bulgaria either through the territory of Roumania by railway, or over water to the Bulgarian coast.

2—Varna is the chief Bulgarian Black Sea port. It is heavily fortified.

3—Salonica is the base of the operations of the allies to aid Servia. French, British and Italian troops are being landed on the Gulf of Salonica. The Greek troops, crossing the boundary immediately to the north of Salonica, are expected to aid the field operations.

4—The Bulgarian troops are expected to invade Servia at this point and cut the railway which supplies Servia with communications to the south.

5—Italian troops, centering on Brindisi, Italy, are expected to cross the Adriatic Sea and march to attack Bulgaria across Albania.

6—Shows the point on the Danube River where the Germans are concentrated for a drive against Semendria and the railway leading to Nish.

7—Shows the general location of Austrian troops on the Danube.

8—Shows the territory west of the Serbian frontier from which three columns of Austrian troops are expected to move against Serbia, centring on the Western Morava valley.

Allies Begin New Attack on Turks

ATHENS, Oct. 5.—Simultaneously with the general offensive of the allies against the Germans, the Anglo-French forces have opened another furious attack against the Turks, not only at the Dardanelles, but on the coast of Asia Minor.

Long range guns, mounted on especially built barges, have entered the Dardanelles under the fire of the dreadnoughts of the Anglo-French fleet and opened a violent bombardment against the Turkish positions on the Asiatic side of the strait.

British squadron from Mitylene has shelled Frenk on the Gulf of Adramiti. Frenk is on a railway line running from Kemer to Edremid.

BERLIN WONDERS AT RUSSIA'S "COURAGE" IN BALKAN MOVE

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—Russia's ultimatum to Bulgaria provoked astonishment here, says an item given out today by the Overseas news agency.

By International News Service.

The military authorities declare it would be dangerous to allow him at large because of his pro-German sympathies.

MORE GROUND IN WEST RETAKEN BY GERMANS

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—Strong German counter attacks have gained further ground for the Teutonic forces on the west front.

The German War Office in an official statement today reported that a trench had been recaptured from the French at Givenchy (North of Arras) together with four machine guns.

French aviators have shelled Blach St. Vaast.

The British renewed their attacks in the sector of Loos, in Artois, but these were repulsed. The Germans killed some of the attacking soldiers and took eighty prisoners.

"At no place have the attacks of the allies on the west front gone beyond the second line," says the General Staff. The statement contains parts of general orders issued to French and British soldiers before the present offensive operations of the allies began.

"Upon the forthcoming battle depends the fate of future English generations," said the general order to the British.

"Germany was engaged in moving troops from the western theatre when the allies' great offensive was launched and only one division was retained, the General Staff says.

"At no place on the front have the allies succeeded in making it impossible to move troops behind our front," says the statement.

"The allied governments had hoped to achieve a victory in the west, for its effect upon neutral nations. The whole of Lord Kitchener's army had been gathered for the attacks and the artillery and machine gun strength of the French and British had been raised to its greatest power. Cavalry was to be used on an extensive scale when the German lines were pierced."

ARTILLERY AND BOMB FIGHTING CONTINUE IN THE CHAMPAGNE

By International News Service.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Combats with artillery, bombs and torpedoes continue in Artois and the Champagne region. The official communique issued by the French War Office today states that a violent artillery duel is in progress.

The text of the communique follows:

"In Artois there has been a rather violent bombardment on both sides along the whole front north of La Scarpe and a conflict with bombs and torpedoes in the sectors of Quennevieres, Vic-Sur-Aisne and on the plateau of Vauquois.

"In Champagne a continuous reciprocal cannonade has been going on, particularly in the region of L'Epine de Vedegranges, near the Navarin Farm, and on the height of Medeah.

"In the Argonne there have been trench to trench fights with grenades and petards at Courtes Chausses and La Fille Norte. To the north of Verdun, in the vicinity of Ornes, our artillery fire struck a German train and caused a very violent explosion.

"On the rest of the front there has been nothing reported.

"One of our aeroplane squadrons dropped fifty shells on the railway station at Biaches, near Peronne."

Lime Against Tuberculosis

In the May 25, 1912, issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association appeared this statement: "Calcium (lime) medication in the treatment of tuberculosis.

"Under the scientific, continued and persistent regime of calcium assimilation I can truthfully say the cure or his patients improve.' That spurious citizen, 'Lo, of tubercle bacilli which finally disappear, and the patients are discharged with healed pulmonary tuberculosis."

Medical journals seldom speak so unanimously about a remedial agent, yet this testimony coincides with that from many commercials who have secured like results through the use of Eckman's Alterative.

Since calcium is a constituent of this remedy, its healing power may be due to the way this element is so combined with other curative ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Eckman's Alterative contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so it is safe to try. Sold by all Liber Drug Stores and leading druggists.

CHARLTON PLEA OF INSANITY LOOKED FOR

VICTIM IN TRUNK MYSTERY AND THE SCENE OF CRIME

COMO, Italy, Oct. 5.—Porter Charlton, twenty-five, the American, was scheduled to go on trial in the Court of Assizes today for the murder of his wife, who was slain and her body thrown into Lake Como inside a trunk five years ago.

Adolescent insanity, created by the life of dissipation into which his wife led him, will be the basis of the defence, according to Judge John Palmieri of New York, an Italian attorney, who is his chief counsel.

Charlton declared early today he wished to tell his story to the jury, but it is not certain his counsel will allow him to do this. He feels sure of acquittal, although he admits killing Mrs. Charlton.

The victim of the crime was nearly twenty years older than the young man who was scheduled to be brought to the bar today. They had taken a small villa on Lake Como in June, 1910, both disappeared. The finding of the trunk with the woman's body in it resulted in the arrest of Charlton as he stepped down the gangplank of a steamship at New York.

TOLD OF SLAYING.

He declared his wife had driven him to despair, and he had beaten her on the head with a mallet and then disposed of her body. His story pictured himself as an excessively modest and shy lad who grew up to early manhood wholly ignorant of love affairs and womankind until he fell under the influence of Mrs. Harry Scott Castle, a divorcee of forty.

They were married secretly and left America to escape notoriety. At their retreat on Lake Como, he said, they dissipated a great deal. She lifted him with liquor, he said, until he was a nervous wreck. She taunted him with his youth and immaturity and told him of the superiority in other men to whom she had given her love.

At the trial Charlton's counsel will probably not spare her memory, but the dead woman's brother, Captain Henry Harrison Scott, U. S. A., has engaged an attorney, who will try to break down any attempt to picture her as a "vampire."

Charlton spent three years in the jail in Jersey City after his arrest.

WAR DELAYED TRIAL.

Two years ago he was surrendered to the Italian authorities on extradition proceeding and brought here by steamer from Boston. Since his arrival here three successive dates have been set for his trial, but each time it was postponed. This has delayed his trial almost a year.

Charlton is not indicted for murder in the first degree, the penalty for which is solitary confinement for life. He is charged with "ungremeditated murder," the extreme penalty for which is twenty years.

Italian judges in passing a sentence also take cognizance of the time the accused has spent in jail before his conviction, for the man awaiting trial in Italy is denied visits, correspondence and outside comforts, and is no better off than a convict in his treatment.

Two Italian insanity experts recently examined Charlton. One found him legally insane at the time of the killing, while the other disagreed.

If Charlton addresses the jury, this will be a big feature of the trial. In Italian courts the accused has great latitude in expression. He may interrupt witnesses at will, address the court when he pleases and in general make all efforts to convince the jury of his innocence. In order to address the jury effectively Charlton has made himself a master of the Italian tongue.

Mrs. Mary Scott Castle Charlton, whose adventurous career ended in her murder at Lake Como, Italy, five years ago, it is alleged, at the hands of her husband. Scene showing bridge over the Italian lake from which, it is alleged, the American threw the trunk containing the body of his wife.

Dummy Kaisers Are Shield for Emperor

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Swiss dispatches bring reports from Germany that four or more dummy Kaisers ride forth daily in different parts of Germany as part of a scheme to protect the real Emperor, who fears aviators' bombs or attempt at his capture by raiding aviators.

Son Fails to Save Mother from Fire

MERRIMAC, N. H., Oct. 5.—Mrs. Mary A. Buckley, seventy-eight, was burned to death when her clothing ignited as she was lighting an oil stove in her home. Her son, Charles G. Buckley, was badly burned when he wrapped her in a rug to put out the flames.

Morgan Has Baby Brother-in-Law

Junius Spencer Morgan has a brother-in-law since a baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Converse of Cross ways, Westwood, one of whose daughters, Louise Converse, Morgan married some months ago. The baby will probably be called Edward Winchester Converse. There are six sisters in the Converse family, but this is the only brother living.

N.Y.Drops $2,591,000 in Personal Taxes

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Mayor Mitchel's plan for a personal tax assessment roll for 1916 had its first practical demonstration with discouraging results. Sixty-five persons appeared at the tax department to swear off an aggregate of $2,609,700, which had been set down against their names. All but five convinced the tax officials that they had been erroneously assessed and their names were stricken off the books. The five who remained were assessed on property valued at $9,700.

Police Still Hunt Escaped Convict

Police of Boston and neighboring cities and towns have failed to capture William F. Mrs. Williams is in a state of terror lest Smith should carry out his threats, conveyed in letters since he has been in prison, that he would return and kill her.

WOMAN SUSPECT IN NORTH SHORE GEM ROBBERY

—the local and State police were called into the case.

The theft thus became a matter of public knowledge.

Deputy Chief Neal of the State police said:

"Our officer, Mr. Wells, is at work on the case. We are trying to recover the jewels. But in all my experience—and there is a robbery like this almost every year—I never knew of the jewels being recovered."

Officer Wells told this story of the theft:

"On the night of the disappearance of the jewelry, Miss Beachy, Mrs. McMillan's maid, was with a nursemaid all the evening. Mrs. Gibson, grandaughter of Mrs. McMillan, was downstairs, and her maid and another spent the evening sewing in a room in the back part of the house. Mrs. Gibson's chambers were in another wing of the house, some distance from Mrs. McMillan's.

WINDOWS WERE OPEN.

"Mrs. McMillan, who is eighty-two years of age, locked her door, as was her nightly custom, on retiring, and the only other door leading out of her chamber was one from the bathroom leading into the room formerly occupied by Senator McMillan and later used occasionally as a guest chamber. The bathroom was bolted from Mrs. McMillan's side. The bathroom window shutters also were bolted and evidently had not been unlocked for a long time.

"Windows in her bedchamber, however, were open, and the screens could have been lifted and dropped again, from the outside. These windows face the sea, which is not more than 50 feet distant.

"The night in question was rainy and it was blowing hard. The shore is dotted with nasty ledges, and it would be impossible for a boat to land in rough weather. But ten minutes' walk down the shore is Singing Beach, and here a boat might have been launched safely. There are no public roads near the estate, and an automobile could not have been driven very near the house.

"The jewelry was kept in boxes. There was one large box for the most valuable pieces, and it seems strange that boxes and all were removed. A man taking the jewelry could easily have stuffed his loot in a coat pocket, but not so with the boxes.

HAS NO INVENTORY.

"We have no complete inventory of the jewels. I suppose by this time all the pieces have been unset and it would be hard to identify them if found. We hope, however, to find some small pieces, unmounted, and thereby trace the rest. Chief Sullivan says that he is unable to find that any person was around Manchester who could have been in collusion with any household servant."

Chief Sullivan of Manchester said today:

"We are working on the case. We were called in yesterday. The members of the household are giving us every assistance.

"We have no suspicions as to who the thief may be. I cannot comment on statements made by detectives who have investigated the mystery privately.

"Our efforts will first be turned to recovering the gems. We shall closely send throughout the country a description of them. Meanwhile, we are looking into the circumstances surrounding the theft."

The little spangle discovered in the safe was found by Morris H. Asher, head of the New York detective agency which has worked on the case.

"On my first visit to the house," said Mr. Asher, "I was permitted to look at the safe in which the jewels had been kept. I found the safe empty. I took the precaution of groping carefully in the compartment from which the valuables had been taken.

DISCOVERED SPANGLE.

"When I withdrew my hand I discovered sticking to my finger the tiny spangle. It had been caught on the side edge of the compartment door. Mrs. McMillan's maid, who put the jewels away, was asked if she had an evening gown with trimmings of that sort. She said she had not.

"Two days later she sent me a spangle which we considered identical with the one found in the safe. I also found on Miss Beachy. She told me she had taken the second spangle from an evening gown she had found in the house.

Mr. Asher declared that he then proceeded carefully everyone in the house, keeping a stenographic report of the answers. He said that he also made dictagraphs throughout the house, so that he still has the records of the conversations overheard by the device.

NOTHING SHRINKS, FADES, WRINKLES

Women save $5 in an hour by dry cleaning at home with gasoline

Women here who have tried dry cleaning find it very easy and inexpensive to clean and freshen all the ribbons, silks, satins, laces, yokes, furs, silk shirtwaists, kid gloves and shoes, neckties, children's clothes, suits, caps, Swiss, lawn, organdie and chiffon dresses, woolen garments, fancy vests, draperies, rugs, in fact, any and everything that would be ruined with soap and water.

Get two ounces of solvite at any drug store and put it in two gallons of gasoline where it instantly dissolves, then put in the goods to be cleaned, rub a little and out they come, looking as bright and fresh as new. You will find nothing fades, shrinks or wrinkles, requiring no pressing.

You can do five dollar's worth of home dry cleaning in an hour at little cost. It is so easy and you can't make a mistake. Any grocery or garage will supply the gasoline and you can obtain two ounces of solvite at the drug store which is simply a gasoline soap, then a wash boiler or large dishpan completes your dry cleaning outfit.

BEGIN ATTACK ON FORTS OF BOSTON

Today at noon the war game between the fortifications of Boston Harbor and an imaginary enemy officially began. The problem that confronts 2,500 men and officers of the coast artillery of the regular army, scattered throughout every fort in the harbor from Winthrop to Hull, is: Can a foreign fleet take or silence the harbor defences of Boston and capture the city with the aid of an army.

The navy will furnish fourteen torpedo destroyers. These will be under command of Colonel F. G. Mauldin, who will be the umpire afloat. Colonel Mauldin will work out the various phases of the war game with his ships which will represent a foreign navy. It will be strictly a coast artillery war game.

It is assumed that a mobile army composed of the rank and file of the militia and volunteers are backing up the coast fortifications, and that the blue navy, that is, the defenders has been more or less damaged, thus allowing this foreign fleet to get at our shores.

The game is for the purpose of giving the ranking officers of the coast artillery drill and experience in handling various situations that might reasonably be expected to arise if a navy from a hostile flag should get at our shores.

Today and Wednesday will be given over entirely to getting the various forces into shape to handle the situation.

Thursday and Friday, continuously from early morning until daylight, the game will be on and every gun in every fort in the harbor, with the exception of the big guns, will be fired. They may all be firing at once, which will furnish plenty of noise and excitement to those who will be found watching the progress of the game.

The artillery companies from Forts Williams, McKinley and Preble in Portland Harbor and Fort Constitution at Portsmouth arrived today and last night. Colonel G. W. Gatchell and staff from Forts Williams and McKinley have arrived at Fort Warren, and Colonel Gatchell will be the umpire-in-chief on land. He commands the defences of Portland Harbor.

More men and officers of the regular service and more and higher powered searchlights will be used in this war game than any undertaken by the government since 1909.

Today, theoretically, Colonel W. G. Haan, commanding the harbor defences and responsible for the defence of the city, seized all the ships now in the harbor for his own use.

AN EASY WAY TO END CATARRH FOREVER

Simple Home Treatment Destroys Germs of This Dangerous Disease.

The reason why so many people who suffer from Catarrh never seem able to get cured is that they are continually feeding the momentary relief of powders, douching, greasy creams, ointments, etc., that only clogs up the pores, irritates and clear the head temporarily be-cause it does so while the patient is blowing, hawking, spitting and choking, but they never cure. To get rid of Catarrh for good you have got to get down to the cause. That is a germ disease, the air is always full of catarrh germs that are breathed in, which are carried by another and when the system does fail to throw off such germs they find permanent lodgment in the nose, throat and head and multiply rapidly.

The germs of catarrh can best be destroyed by inhaling the pure medicated vapor of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me). This splendid and powerful combination of the oils of Eucalyptus with other healing agents has a wonderful germicidal action. You breathe its air into your nose, throat and lungs by means of a small hard rubber inhaler which Hicks Drug Stores and other leading druggists in this vicinity supply with every complete treatment. This medicated air is breathed, death to the germs of Catarrh and drives them completely out of your system. In a few days the germs are destroyed the catarrh with all its disagreeable symptoms will stop. Two or three minutes' use will give you soothing relief while if you will use it freely through the day for a few weeks it will completely banish catarrh and every symptom of catarrh. Hyomei is so pleasant to breathe and is always sold by druggists everywhere with a positive guarantee of successful results or money back, surely no Catarrh sufferer should go long before trying this simple home remedy.—Advertisement.

B. & M. Vouchers Broke U. S. Law, Says Benton

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 5.—John E. Benton of Keene, who conducted the case for the State at the inquiry into the spending of the Boston & Maine money for political work, legal service and publicity, today declared that the falsifying of vouchers which has been disclosed is a violation of the Federal statute. The hearing ended last night.

He said the matter of indictments rests with the Department of Justice at Washington.

The alleged falsifications occurred in July, 1912, when $12,665 was sent in cash by the Boston & Maine treasurer to the treasurer of the Concord & Montreal railroad, John F. Webster, with instructions to pay it to George A. Weston, who had signed vouchers.

It appeared from the testimony that President Benjamin A. Kimball of the Concord & Montreal railroad received the money, Weston having signed the vouchers to accommodate Kimball.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Ambassador Morgenthau at Constantinople has been instructed by cable to inform the Turkish Minister of Foreign Affairs that public sentiment in the United States is so stirred by reports of Armenian atrocities that unless the massacres cease friendly relations between the American people and the people of Turkey will be threatened.

Germany herself, according to a report from Ambassador Morganthau, has protested to the Sultan's government through the Kaiser's embassy at Constantinople against the Armenian atrocities.

Zapatistas Block Plans of Carranza

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—General Zapata and his followers form the stumbling block in carranza's path to recognition as the leader in Mexican affairs. This, it was learned, today, was the gist of what Secretary of State Lansing informed Eliseo Arredondo, Carranza's confidential agent here, last night. As a result Arredondo today got into communication with General Carranza. He informed him that the State Department must be told of what Carranza plans to do with Zapata.

Rescued Schooner Big Salvage Prize

The tugboat Sadie Ross, towing in the salvaged schooner Samuel R. Hubbard, ran into a southeasterly gale outside the harbor and signalled for assistance. The Ross Tugboat Company sent the tug E. D. Haley to her aid.

The Samuel R. Hubbard will furnish a big salvage prize. Her value is about $65,000, and close to half that is expected to be allotted as salvage to the tugboat company and to the crew of the fishing schooner Mary, which on Sunday rescued Captain Hardy and the crew of the Hubbard from the bulk and put aboard a prize crew.

BROCKTON FAIR DOUBLE DAY TOMORROW

BROCKTON, Oct. 5.—Undaunted by the threat of rain, twenty-five thousand people flocked out to the Fair Grounds today.

They began coming early, and by 9:30 the crowd was thick about the grandstand.

The opening day was Children's Day, but because of the rain which started at a little before 11 o'clock, the program was put over until the skies should clear, or until tomorrow.

The same arrangement was made as to the races. So that tomorrow will be practically a "double day," with a double list of events.

The automobile show was the feature that attracted the most attention today.

The show is a new addition to the fair, and is the first official automobile exhibition of the year.

One hundred and twenty cars were on display, with accessories in great numbers.

WOLLASTON GIRL TELLS OF ELOPING IN AUTOMOBILE

Former Harriette Schneider Becomes Bride After Two Times Trying.

Mrs. H. L. Kelley, formerly Miss Harriette Maude Schneider of No. 241 Elmwood avenue, Wollaston, today told how she figured as heroine in a romantic auto elopement September 20, in which Howard L. Kelley of South Dennis starred at the wheel.

Mrs. Kelley is nineteen, tall, slim and graceful, with big, blue eyes and wavy chestnut hair. She is a former Dorchester girl and admits being an ardent advocate of that well known saying: "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

As Miss Schneider, she failed in her first attempt. However, she did try again, and showed to the record as proof of this a narrow band of gold hovering close to a big, brilliant solitaire.

ELOPEMENT UNEXPECTED.

"It all came about in this way," declared Mrs. Kelley. "Howard and I went for a spin in his machine on the 20th of September, much as we had done on many previous occasions. Neither of us had the slightest intention of getting married on that particular day, I assure you, as we started from home, though we had attempted to get married two years before and, after our plans had been frustrated on that occasion, we decided to wait until I should come of age. I was only seventeen then.

"However, on this day, as we were spinning through Hyde Park, Howard popped the question again, and, although I don't remember exactly what my answer was, don't you think it must have been a favorable one?

"We were married in Bristol, Vt., at the Villa Truffle Trudeau, by a friend of ours, the Rev. N. G. Macfarlane, the pastor of the Congregational Church of that city.

"Upon our return we decided to keep the matter secret for a while, though the good news has come out. I told mother and father, but they are the only ones who know as yet. I hadn't intended to announce it for another week to come."

TAKE AUTO TOUR.

Mrs. Kelley, up to last year, lived in Dorchester, where she has many friends in musical and church circles. She was a member of the Harvard Congregational Church, which Mr. Kelley, also formerly of Dorchester, attended.

She is a graduate of the Oliver Wendell Holmes School and also of the Girls' Latin School. Up to the time of her marriage she was employed as bookkeeper in a Washington street jewelry store.

Mr. Kelley is the son of Howard Kelley of South Dennis, and, while only twenty-three years of age, is the Vermont salesmanager of a large automobile concern. He has furnished a beautiful bungalow for his young bride at No. 234 Pearl street, Burlington, Vt.

The young couple will take an extended automobile tour through the Eastern States and Canada.

Mrs. H. L. Kelley, formerly Miss Schneider, whose second attempt to wed succeeded.

Wollaston girl, fond of athletics, is very clever as an amateur swimmer.

Money Overflows In Kansas Banks

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 5.—Kansas banks have actually overflowed with money this year. Never before in their history have deposits reached a point where the banks could not receive them without violating the law. Most of the banks have added to their surplus or capital accounts in order to permit the acceptance of additional deposits. There is a provision of the Kansas law that no State bank be permitted to have deposits exceeding ten times the capital and surplus of the bank.

WOMAN KILLS HERSELF IN REVERE

Mrs. Grace Butler rose at 2.30 this morning in the Butler flat at No. 61 Kimball avenue, Revere, without disturbing her husband, went into the kitchen, shot herself in the left breast, then staggered back into the bedroom, roused her husband and told him.

She died an hour later in the Frost Hospital in Chelsea. She was 36 years old and under treatment for nervous breakdown.

The first the Revere police knew of the suicide was when the husband, Edward Butler, telephoned frantically a few minutes after 3:30 for an ambulance to take his dying wife to the hospital.

Living in the Butler flat are two or three lodgers, but these were not awakened by the shooting, any more than the husband was, although Mrs. Butler used a 38-calibre revolver.

Mrs. Butler evidently aimed for her heart, but the bullet, as traced later by Dr. Charles Sherry at the Frost Hospital, went slightly downward, missing the heart and failing to cause instant death.

Mrs. Butler had strength left to get back to her husband and awaken him.

When Mr. Butler opened his eyes he beheld his wife standing by the bed. She gasped, "I've shot myself," then collapsed.

A blood trail to the kitchen and the revolver on the kitchen floor told the rest of the suicidal story.

"L" Worker Dies Suddenly.

Frank Washburn, sixty-three, of No. 40 Briggs street, Melrose Highlands, an office employe of the Boston Elevated, died of natural causes shortly after coming to his work this morning.

Girl Dared Him to Take Lantern, Prisoner Says

Patrolman Samuel Kinnear of Court square early today met on High street a man with a lantern on one arm and a young woman on the other.

The lantern had evidently been removed from a building under construction, and the patrolman requested the young man to return it.

The request, accordingly to Patrolman Kinnear, was mirthfully denied and he accordingly took steps to enforce it and then took the young man to the station, the young woman protesting all the way.

The man, after saying his name was A. C. Brauner and that he lived on Astor street, in the Back Bay, declared the young woman dared him to steal the lantern, but he was booked for drunkenness just the same.

Bishop Codman Is Still Critically Ill

The officials of Peter Bent Brigham Hospital gave out the following bulletin on Bishop Robert Codman at 10:30 today:

"Bishop Codman is still unconscious, and his condition remains critical."

The bishop was operated upon yesterday. His left side was paralyzed. A small piece of bone was removed from the forehead to lessen pressure on a section of the brain and thus to relieve the paralysis. The bishop's bride is at the hospital day and night. His sister arrived early today from her home in Westwood after being at the hospital the day before.

TO INTRODUCE NOTES IN HILL LOVE SUIT

By International News Service.

DETROIT, Oct. 5.—When Lucita Covington takes the stand in New York to testify in her $100,000 breach of promise suit against Dr. John Wesley Hill she says she will introduce several letters selected from 200 which, she asserts, she received from the New York minister, a diamond ring which she declares Dr. Hill gave her shortly after their alleged engagement, and will tell of many gifts, including furs and clothing she says he showered on her until the Summer of 1914.

"I was in Chicago when Dr. Hill proposed to me," said Miss Covington here today, "and that time he was lecturing west of that city.

"At every opportunity he came to Chicago to see me, and on one of his early trips presented me with a diamond engagement ring, a beauty, which weighed one and a half karats.

"I am not wearing it now, but it will be introduced in the suit.

"His gifts were not limited to jewelry, and I received from him presents of 185 suits, hats that costs from $25 to $65 and imported French blouses. I received all of 200 letters from Dr. Hill while we were engaged, all of them were written to be strictly business letters of the 'Dear Miss Covington' type, but they were not.

"They were written with the intent that I should read between the lines. I was able to, and I am sure the jury that hears my suit will also.

"I will not introduce all of them, only a picked few."

THE RULES : : Read Carefully, Then Save for Future Reference

1. The Boston American presents a Movie Picture Title Contest, which is a test of education, thought, skill and judgment.

2. The cash awards, 29 in number, will be to the value of $1,000.

3. Any resident of New England may compete except the employes of the Boston American, their relatives and families, and the members of the committee of judges and their immediate families.

4. It costs nothing to enter the contest.

5. Each day, for 28 consecutive days, a picture will be printed in the Daily and Sunday American. Contestants must supply each picture with a title, using the title of a movie picture that shall be most fitting and appropriate, describing it most completely, or fitting it most perfectly. The one supplying the greatest number of such "most fitting and appropriate" titles shall earn the first award, the one supplying the next greatest number shall earn the next award, etc.

6. The winners will be decided by a committee of three judges, who will be well-known persons of recognized ability and character in the community, and who will consider each title on its merits.

7. No contestant may submit more than five titles to each picture.

8. No titles will be adjudged as "most appropriate" until after the close of the contest. The "most fitting and appropriate" titles will be determined by the judges from among all the titles submitted by all contestants and only after all such titles submitted have been carefully examined. When the judges agree on a title regarded by them as the "most fitting and appropriate," their adjudication will be so considered on all contestants' lists. For example, if there were six different titles submitted for Picture No. 1, the judges will examine these six titles and decide which one submitted is "most fitting and appropriate" to Picture No. 1. If two or more titles submitted are equally "most fitting and appropriate" to any picture and superior to all others submitted, each of such equally fitting titles will be approved and credited as "most fitting and appropriate." In case of ties, the one who submits the least total number of titles, including those "most fitting and appropriate" and others, will earn the appropriate award. If there should still be a tie, the award shall be determined by the judges' decision of the superiority of the titles, taking into consideration originality, skill, judgment, as shown by the best understanding of the essential elements of the picture as typified by the title of the movie picture.

9. No person can win more than one award, and not more than one award will be awarded in any one family or household, or to persons residing at the same address, excepting non-relatives living at hotels, apartments or lodging houses. Fictitious names or addresses are not permitted, and their use will debar contestants. Collusion will bar contestants.

10. There will be no book of titles to buy. An official list of movie picture titles will appear, the first list appearing with the first published picture, and then, each week, in the Sunday American, during the contest. This list will be the standard for contestants to use in selecting the titles for the pictures appearing during that week beginning with each Sunday official list publication, and all titles selected for that week's pictures must be among those in and selected from this list. It is not necessary to buy the Boston American to obtain this official list, as it may be secured free upon application to the Contest Editor.

11. Titles may be sent in on a coupon which will be printed in the American, Daily and Sunday, or a copy of it. Each title must be attached to a picture or a copy of it. A picture (or a copy of it) must accompany each title submitted.

12. Contestants must NOT send in their titles before the contest ends. Titles sent in before the last picture printed will not be considered. Keep them from day to day and at the end of the contest arrange them in numerical order and send them in ALL TOGETHER AT ONE TIME.

13. All titles must be directed to the Boston American Contest Headquarters at No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass., within the specified time limit, which will be announced later. The Boston American cannot be responsible for matter sent by mail and urges contestants who use the mail to send their packets by first class registered mail. The Boston American will refuse titles on which postal charges are not prepaid.

14. As the awards will depend on the conscientious decision of the committee of judges, who will be prominent persons of the highest character, using their best judgment as they would if deciding on the best story or poem in a literary contest, their decision will be final.

15. Entering the contest is an acceptance of all rules now or hereafter to be made by the Boston American or the committee of judges and the decision of either on any point shall be absolutely final.

NEWS OF THE MANY ATTRACTIONS NOW AT THEATRES OF BOSTON

'A PAIR OF SILK STOCKINGS' AT WILBUR

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

The English are printing a glossary of American slang in the programs of American plays given in London and a glossary of English slang might not be amiss at the Wilbur these days.

"A Pair of Silk Stockings" is the play in which mysterious terms occur. It is a bright little comedy of English ways, performed by a half-marked English company, and produced by Winthrop Ames, formerly of Beacon street, now of New York.

It drew a very large and well-dressed audience to the cozy little theatre, which is admirably suited to a drawing-room comedy of this character. Its crisp, incisive and, occasionally brilliant dialogue, caused peals of laughter. It made what might be described as a whanger of a hit.

"A Pair of Silk Stockings" is a trifle naughty. There is a bedroom scene in it and a lady who retires holds converse with a former lover who happens to climb in the window while her divorced husband, hiding in a closet, is mistaken for a burglar.

HAS BEDROOM SCENE.

It may be admitted that this chamber scene is a trifle artificial. It seems as though the playwright wished to make people say, "Oh, how improper," and at the same time retain friendly relations with the public.

The play deals with a girl who divorced her husband on insufficient grounds, and feeling repentant, went looking for him. She found him a guest at a country house endeavoring to drink himself to death upon his host's good whiskey.

He slips into her chamber for an opportunity to discuss the situation, conveniently disguised in the costume of a play which they were rehearsing in the first act. The lady has been put up in a room just vacated by a scandalous lady who had gone to London. He misses his train, returns in time to catch the husband whom he thinks is a burglar. He ties him up with a pair of silk stockings loaned by the lady, and puts him in the bathroom. The burglar naturally escapes, and the couple are discovered alone minus their burglar chaperon.

THIRD ACT STRONGEST.

The third act is in many respects the strongest of the three, for it contains by far the most dialogue of the piece. The husband reveals himself as the burglar, thereupon he uncompromised, if there is such a word, and the divorced pair agree to remarry. Spiritedly enough, the silk curtain seems to be the motto.

Miss Athene Seyler, as the simple, single-minded and bibulous husband whose language is always exceedingly droll, was delightful. A more artistic and sympathy winning characterization than his Sam Thornhill It would be hard to find.

Miss Eva Leonard-Boyne, as the spiritedly independent wife who relishes flings hang the play, deserves praise for a very bright and intelligent interpretation. Miss Ellis Jeffreys, the wealthy divorcee, Mr. Allington Wade, as the middle-aged lady Gower, has one of the richest dowager roles that has been seen for a long time, and he made it wonderfully well. Sybill Carlisle and Gladys Kenny, Wilace Erskine and Clayton Green were all completely successful.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand Opera House opened yesterday in grand shape, with a very large attendance, and many of the patrons had an opportunity to have their picture taken while entering the theatre and after the matinee. This picture will be shown on the screen at the Grand Opera House.

A Wurlitzer Concert Orchestra has been installed in the balcony, which renders a musical program daily before the afternoon and evening performances.

"Judge, Not," in six parts, featured the Broadway favorite, Julia Dean. This photo play is from the pen of that prolific writer, Peter B. Kyne. There was also a good weekly, a laughing comedy and other feature pictures.

The rising number, billed as an "Attraction Extraordinary," certainly stood right up to the announcement.

This is a great mystery, unusually striking, in which youth and grace in every scene. The "Fountain of Youth" is a novelty of spectacular grandeur, requiring a great deal of time and a large outlay of money and much ingenuity to produce. The story was scraped under the personal direction of R. M. Goodwin and built by that famous master of stage craft, Charles Catulle.

Colonial Theatre.

There was an interesting addition to the Colonial of the Zoo Girls Follies at the Colonial Theatre last evening, and the novelty which was introduced took its place at once among the popular features of the revue.

Ina Claire showed her versatility by giving imitations in the second act, and the manner in which she showed the characteristics of Harry Lauder in his pawky Scotch songs, caught the fancy of the house at once. It was as a giver of imitations that Miss Claire first won popularity in vaudeville and her mimicry of Lauder took its place as a classic.

Since she returned to Boston with Follies many requests were made to repeat the imitation and in order to satisfy them the change in specialty was provided. The audience enjoyed it immensely and the recalls were so insistent that it was manifest that Lauder would be retained by Miss Claire so long as the Follies remained in Boston.

Symphony Hall.

That photo play de luxe, Geraldine Farrar in "Carmen," drew two very large audiences to Symphony Hall yesterday. People are already returning to see it a second time. Such brilliant screen pictures, such wonderful photography, and such amazing acting have never before been seen in Boston.

Miss Farrar's conception of Carmen is shaded and illustrated by the big orchestra, which performs themes and motives from the opera throughout the play. It is asserted that this is not an attempt to put the opera on the screen, but a new play upon the subject of "Carmen," with the greatest living exponent of this gypsy queen to play the title role.

BATHING SCENE DELETED AT KEITH'S

A stern hand, reckless of the artistic, descended on Gertrude Hoffman's production of "Sumurun" and removed therefrom the dainty little bathing scene, which was the joy of the front row at Keith's. Outside of that, "Sumurun" is still thriving and promises to fill the theatre for the remainder of its second week.

A week ago four bewitching damsels, clad in union suits and lovely smiles, took a plunge into pool in the centre of the stage, cavorted about to the strains of appropriate music and then fled, in all their loveliness, to the wings.

Upon the opening of "Sumurun," the young ladies did a little dance after emerging, all dripping, from the pool. This display of feminine shapeliness was considered by somebody—not occupying the front row—as a bit too summery or something, so the dance was ordered omitted.

There has been a deal of cold weather lately so it will have to be assumed that the girls' physician ordered them to omit first the dance and then the bathing scene altogether—with the emphasis on the "altogether." That explanation is as good as any other, so let's look further for a reason?

This "Sumurun" is something that grows on one, so it is not surprising to see numerous "repeaters" in the audience. Too much cannot be said for the thoroughness of the production and the capability of Miss Hoffman and her excellent company in their performance of this extract from the "Tales of the Arabian Nights."

Another bill of infinite variety accompanies "Sumurun" at Keith's this week. The Wheeler trio are some very good acrobats. Julie Coates has three colored lads of singular entertaining capacity. They are dubbed the "cracker-jacks," which suits them to perfection.

Roger Imhoff, Hugh L. Conn and Marcelle Cerene present an amusing military travesty called "Surgeon Bender, U. S. A." Grace Fisher, the "Sunshine Girl," entertains in pleasing fashion. Kate Elinore and Sam Williams, more entertaining than ever, are seen in "The Hunter and the Huntress," and Harry DeCoe, "the fellow with the tables and chairs," completes an excellent bill.

Boston Theatre.

George Bronson Howard's great five-act play, "An Enemy to Society," with Hamilton Revelle and Lois Meredith in the principal roles, heads the bill offered at the Boston Theatre the first three days of this week.

This picture, made from the successful play of the same name, tells the story of how a man, seeking to avenge himself upon the financier who has ruined his fortunes, kidnaps the rich man's son during early childhood and raises the boy up as a thief. After many years, the father is informed that the outcast from society is none other than his long-lost son.

Another strong feature of the bill is Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle, the world's great dancers, in an exhibition of their very latest dances.

An additional feature is "Pippa Passes," a picturization of the poem by Robert Browning, directed by D. W. Griffith, producer of "The Birth of a Nation." It is presented with a superb cast, including Mack Sennett, Owen Moore and Billy Quirk. Mary Pickford and Caroline B. Nichols' Fays Serious Orchestra continue their highly successful engagement, and two surprises are offered in "The Horse of the Mountains" and Julia Gonzales.

Park Theatre.

In the company of barnstormers with which Ina Claire is allied at the Park Theatre this week is Theodore Roberts, an old character actor of repute, some of whose ventures turned out in real life as do those he portrays on the screen in "The Wild Goose Chase."

This film is an example of the clean-cut and really funny comedy which is being picturized by the producing companies that manufacture the Paramount Pictures. The comic aspect of a stranded theatrical company always strikes one before the pathetic.

When the stranding is made realistic by one who knows how it feels and when the love interest of the tale is made touching and desirable by a charming actress like Ina Claire, the resultant film story couches the pinnacle of motion picture achievement of the kind.

Whenever Pauline Frederick comes to Boston, either in the spoken or screen drama, there is intense interest in her work. Partly this is because she is a Boston girl, and partly it is because of her ability to portray characters with conviction. In "Zaza," the famous play in which Mrs. Leslie Carter made her greatest success, Miss Frederick has her opportunity.

Waldron's Casino.

"Man, Girl, Bottle and Bird" is the title of the big show given by the Twentieth Century Maids at Waldron's Casino all this week. The title will give some idea of the merry character of the entertainment. It is a swift, merry show from the rise to the fall of the final curtain.

All of the slap-stick stuff, the coarse comedy and other objectionable features of the burlesque show of a few years ago have been eliminated and beauty, laughter, song and dance substituted. The comedians are on the stage almost constantly and when they are absent for a few minutes then come the pretty girls of the chorus, splendidly powered and with joyful song and dance make the moments pass all too quickly, until the fun starts again.

Several of the situations are veritable screams. The management has been unusually generous in providing a magnificent production and a high-class cast.

At the head stands the favorite comedian, Harry Cooper, than whom there is no better German comedian on the burlesque stage. His chief support is Jim Barton, "the Fellow with the crazy capers." Others in the principal roles are Julia Keletty, the dashing Chesleigh Sisters, Arthur Young and the Old-Town Four, a quartet of vocalists.

Gaiety Theatre.

Quite an innovation is being offered at the Gaiety Theatre this week in the shape of two distinct shows presented by two different burlesque stars, each of whom is in the first rank of entertainers. They are no other than the celebrated Ed Lee Wroth and "Sliding" Billy Watson, each of whom is seen in a one-act burlesque presented by a big company.

It is a veritable burlesque carnival, the program embracing every form of attractive and enjoyable amusement by a company of tried favorites. Wroth in "Higgins at the Race Track" and Watson as the "Flying Gentleman" are seen at their funniest in patent office at Washington, are both bubbling over with laughter and song in the very latest brand.

There are more than forty people in the organization, including Owen Martin, Estelle Colbert, Ethel Marmont, Hazel Woodley, Jack Howard, Jane Perman, Al Dupont and Tommy Brooks. There is a chorus aggregation of twenty-four girls, and the show is staged in lavish style.

Scollay Square Olympia.

A splendid program to large and appreciative audiences was shown yesterday at the Scollay Square Olympia. The bill included: Captain Dan Tourjet in his diving act; Cronin and Trumpeters, in a classy musical offering, featuring Miss Grace Cronin, cellist; Reese Trio, in a clever singing and dancing novelty; Margaret Nelson & Co., in the very dramatic one-act playlet, "A Son of Napoleon"; Sam Watson's Farmyard Circus, including trained ducks, cats, roosters and pigs; Colonial Trio in a beautiful singing and musical novelty; "The Price of Her Silence," the great five-reel Mutual Master-picture, featuring Florence Reed and Holbrook Blinn.

Franklin Park Theatre.

It would be difficult to arrange a better balanced program of feature photo plays and high-class vaudeville than the bill which was enjoyed by a packed house at The Franklin Park last night.

The big feature is the five-part photo play, "Incorrigible Duncan C. Ross," with Barrymore as the star. With John Barrymore as the star. The dancing Marrs, a trio of wonderful dancers, is the feature vaudeville offering, and is supported by three of the best acts seen in Dorchester's popular playhouse.

There is class written all over the bill and the clever pictures including the Pathe weekly.

"NOBODY HOME" WELCOMED AT THE HOLLIS

"Nobody Home," which left the Wilbur Theatre Saturday night, was nicely settled in its new residence, the Hollis Street Theatre, last evening and held a close warming for a very large number of friends.

The clever little comedy has been much strengthened by putting in an orchestra of twenty pieces, in place of the small affair which sufficed at the Wilbur. Several new songs have been interpolated, and one by Adele Rowland made a big hit.

It has been surprising how the public discovered so quickly that the piece is still in town and the indications are that three more weeks of success will greet Lawrence Grossmith, Miss Rowland and the other members of Miss Marbury's unique musical comedy.

It is a long time since a musical show has occupied the Hollis, but no house in Boston is more comfortable or has better acoustic properties, and the intimacy of "Nobody Home" is still preserved here.

Boston Opera in Chicago Premiere

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Grand Opera in America touched a new high water mark here tonight when Auber's, "La Muta Di Portici." "The Dumb Girl of Portici," was performed by the Boston Grand Opera Company and the Favlowa Ballet Russe before a large and fashionable audience in the Auditorium Theatre.

Apart from the distinction attending the Chicago premiere of this dramatic grand opera, the occasion signaled the first appearances together of these two notable organizations that have been combined to give the highest form of serious opera and ballet to a number of United States cities, of which Boston is one.

After the first act there were nine recalls of Pavlowa, Giovanni Zenatello, the great heroic tenor, Felice Amerca's foremost coloratura soprano, Georgi Michaloff, the eminent Russian Lyric tenor, who was making his American debut, Thomas Chalmers, America's leading baritone, Paolo Ananian, the former Metropolitan Opera House basso, conductor Acide Jacchia, and Stage Director Ryszard Ordynski.

Modern Theatre.

Theda Bara, in a very stirring photo-drama, "Sin," is the feature attraction at the Modern Theatre this week. It is a powerful and convincing work with the strongest of dramatic climaxes. It is Latin in story, hence it runs to the extreme in human emotions, hot and vivid, and it may be pronounced one of the most startling productions of the season. It concerns the love of a woodcutter, David, for a passionate daughter of the soil, Rosa.

There is also a beautiful two-reel comedy on the bill that deserves attention, "A Queen for an Hour," in which Edith Storey plays the principal role. The regular organ recital was most pleasing.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE.

Mrs. Whitney's Fashion Show will give three performances at the Park Square Theatre this week, on Thursday and Friday afternoons at 3 o'clock, and on Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. This is the first entire theatrical performance devoted to the fine art of dress staged in America, and it is an absolutely authentic display of coming styles and their tendencies.

Plays That Remain in Boston Theatres

SHUBERT THEATRE.

"Experience" is now in its last weeks at this theatre, and the popularity of the play is only increasing with every passing day. The public is advised to see the big spectacle as soon as possible.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE.

"Twin Beds," the fascinating little comedy, which features Ray Cox, Madge Kennedy and Leo Carillo, is doing an ever increasing business. Indications are that it will remain here until the new year.

TREMONT THEATRE.

"On Trial," the thrilling and novel play devoted to a murder trial has repeated in Boston its New York success. The big cast and the wonderful mechanism for the dark changes are potent attractions.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

"The Follies of 1915," like all their predecessors, is packing them in at the Colonial. Lew Errol, Bert Williams, Kay Laurel, Mae Murray and the other principals are great drawing cards. The engagement of the Follis is limited.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

"The Garden of Lies" continues its marvelous run at the Majestic. It last night began its twenty-seventh week of two performances a day.

TOY THEATRE.

"The Victory," the fairy play by Mrs. Cora Tenney Wilcox and Ruth Davis, is now in its second week. The lyrical lines of the play and its poetic atmosphere are pleasing to many.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

The Plymouth Theatre opens next Thursday evening with Selwyn & Company's newest production, "Rich Hoss," a dramatization of Irwin Cobb's Judge Priest Stories by Bayard Veiller, the author of "Within the Law." In fiction the character of the Judge, wholesome and lovable, has gained remarkable prominence, and with the master hand of Mr. Veiller as playwright, much may be expected of the new play.

Boston Hippodrome.

The Boston Hippodrome, formerly the National Theatre, and the largest auditorium of the kind in the city, with over 3,500 seats, will throw open its doors next Friday afternoon, with the Nowell Baseball Maniins, reproducing the World's Championship Baseball Series between the Red Sox and the Phillies, on the big stage.

This is the same machine that was installed in this theatre for the Polo, and gave such general satisfaction. The ball is shown just as it travels over the diamond, together with every move made by each player.

The games will be reproduced daily at the Boston Hippodrome during the entire World's Series.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE DEAF

If you are losing your hearing—if you are troubled with buzzing and ringing in the ears—if you find that you have to "hitch" more—if you hawk and spit in the morning—if you have given up hopes of finding relief, just go to Hilton's drug store, any other drug store, and purchase one ounce of Fluid Enserol. Mix this with one pint of warm water. Put a few drops in the affected ear every night. Put one tablespoonful in a fourth of a glass of warm water and gargle thoroughly and spit out once night and morning. Keep this up for a few weeks and test your hearing and you will be pleased to note the improvement. You will also, no doubt, discover that your catarrh has disappeared and head noises gone.

CRAIG PLAYERS IN DOMESTIC DRAMA

The Castle Square audience appears to know when there is a treat in store for it. They were all there last night to see Cosmo Hamilton's "The Blindness of Virtue."

Perhaps it was because Mary Young is back again with all her charm and youthfulness, and perhaps it was because the four-act drama treats of the real things of life in a wholesome frank way.

Archibald Graham—he who had been a man about town—through an entire act, harbors a young girl in his bedroom. He proves his true manliness, and although the girl's father, the Rev. Harry Pemberton, at first condemns, he soon discovers his mistake and unites the lovers with his blessing.

There are but seven characters, and each is played with artistic finish by the Craig players.

Mary Young has lost none of her hold on her audience, and her seventeen-year-old Effie was as convincing and ingenuous as possible.

William F. Carlton rose to his climax in the third act with real power and feeling. The rest of his work quite admirable.

Theodore Friebus, as the wise, farseeing vicar, created an appropriate atmosphere throughout the play, and gave his dissertation on the duties of a mother with force and sincerity.

Betty Barnicoat, as a somewhat colorless Enolish matron, was all that could be asked. Justine Adams, who is still new in the company, held her audience for minutes by a bit of acting.

Both Donalk Mask, as Collins, and Miss Vida Croly Sidney, as Cookie, gave finely drawn character impersonations.

Tremont Temple.

A tremendous crowd overflowed Tremont Temple last evening to witness the performance of "Prohibition," a six-part motion picture dealing with the most momentous question of the day. Of all the great feature pictures presented in the Temple, it can be truthfully said none have exceeded "Thorbilion" in dramatic and photographic art and the unbridled enthusiasm of the audience.

The musical program arranged by E. Russell Sanborn was one of the features of the evening. The pictures will be presented twice daily, at 2:15 and 8:15 p. m.

COMB SAGE TEA IN LIFELESS, GRAY HAIR

If Mixed with Sulphur it Darkens so Naturally Nobody can Tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair. It also makes a splendid shampoo, as many everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.—Advertisement.

A Timely Message To the Women of America

Only a few months ago, the greatest and most important corset-invention of all time was placed on sale—the new

SELF-HELP Nemo WONDERLIFT

Its far-reaching and beneficial effects were immediately recognized by hundreds of physicians and surgeons, by fashion writers and hygienists; also by every intelligent woman who had the good fortune to see it and test it.

This new corset-invention furnishes the medical profession with helpful assistance in preventive as well as curative treatment of certain female weaknesses; far more important—it gives all women the means of SELF-HELP to HEALTH.

To make this boon to womankind quickly known, and to place it speedily within the reach of the greatest number, we have indexed representative stores throughout this country to participate in a great trade event during the first week in October—

A "Self-Help" Exposition
Beginning Monday, October 4, 1915

—the purpose of which is to forcibly bring before the public the exclusive merits of this new WONDERLIFT Corset.

During this period every Corset Department will become, for the time being, a branch of the NEMO HYGIENIC-FASHION INSTITUTE. The thousands of graduates and students of this Institute who are employed in many stores throughout the country, as well as the regular staff of every Corset Department, will unite in a great effort to demonstrate and instruct the women of the United States in the latest and most scientific method of SELF-HELP; and our own staff of Instructors will visit, during that week, as many stores as possible.

These experts will explain the new feature of this remarkable Corset; how it gives the most healthful natural support, with delightful comfort; how it gradually and effectively reduces the size and also the weight of the figure; how it keeps the healthy women healthy, and relieves those who are physically weak.

They will fit the "Wonderlift" on you, and show you how to adjust it YOURSELF, so that it will give you symmetrical lines and a stylish, fashionable figure.

It is the Imperative Duty of Every Woman

—to get acquainted with this corset, which soon will be recognized, the world over, as a great blessing to womankind. Every woman owes this to herself, and to those who are near and dear to her.

The most important function of the "Wonderlift" is to PREVENT the ills peculiar to women—bearing-down pains, backaches and so on. But it has proved a wonderful help in CURING these disorders, or at least in relieving the distressing symptoms.

TO ADJUST BANDLET
When corset on figure, well down. Wind bandlet loosely, each side, over second forelapet, flat and even, and hold firmly. Pull clasp—not up or out. Pull elastic—do not jerk or twist the laces. The single bust. Smith with bowknot.

The Wonderlift Corset, in style, workmanship, material and durability, is far superior to most of the ordinary corsets (having no particular feature) sold at the same prices. The beneficial results invariable, epoch-making invention—the [illegible] Nemo "Wonderlift" C[illegible]comes to you entirely [illegible] OF EXTRA CHARGE.

Prices, in all sizes, $5 and upward.

PLAID serge is here suggested for a simple morning dress, but homespun or any other material would do as well. The collar, cuffs and belt should be made of plain cloth in a contrasting color.

SIMPLICITY is the hall-mark of this suit that, with its flare of coat and fulness of skirt, will hold its own among the season's more elaborate models.

Adventures in Saving

Here is a letter on saving from a young business woman. It is well worth reading.

By MISS F. S.

HEREWITH take pleasure in giving my experience in saving money, and trust that it will benefit a great many of your women readers.

I have been a business woman for a number of years, and the thought of saving money never occurred to me. I always took the future for granted until one day a friend of mine asked me if I ever saved any money, and I replied "No."

However, it set me thinking about the matter, and, taking this good friend's advice for what it was worth, I decided then and there to save a certain percentage of my income over and above my necessary expenses and pleasures.

I have now been saving about three years, and I am very proud to state that I have about $1,000 in the bank with accrued interest.

One thing I decided to do at the very start, and that was never to touch the account for any purpose unless a real emergency. Most girls save with the idea of drawing the money for some new clothes, or a vacation or something else, but I consider my savings account in the same light as a life insurance, and I must put aside my instalment every week in order that I can make my deposit in the bank on the first Saturday of every month.

Most men and women begin to save when they contemplate marriage, but if they would only start sooner they would not be obliged to delay marriage because they lacked the price with which to buy their home.

Moreover, men and women who have learned the art of saving money before marriage will not consider it a hardship, but rather a necessity, to economize afterward, because we can only hope to grow in this life by our sacrifices.

A Well Known Actress Tells How She Darkened Her Gray Hair and Promoted Its Growth With a Simple Home Made Mixture.

Miss Blanche Rose, a well-known actress, who darkened her gray hair with a simple preparation which she mixed at home, in a recent interview at Chicago, Ill., made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray hair and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of Bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the required shade. This will make a gray-haired person look 20 years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of hair, relieves itching and scalp humors and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."

The Story of a Doctor's Wife—Told by the Wife Herself

Connie Calls on Marian and Hears Maddening News

CHAPTER XX.

LONELINESS drives women to desperate measures. Almost any daughter of Eve seizes upon the first expedient at hand when she seeks to forget. In striving to conquer her memories Marian Farley became that pathetically loathsome things—"a secret drinker," and my husband and my proteges, Lenore Wallis, attempted to cure her.

I sat aloof, disgusted with Marian's weakness, absorbed in my own woes—and never guessing how unfit I might prove to meet them when I saw them face to face in their sheer brutality.

One afternoon, when Lenore had been living with Marian for about a month, she phoned me with a request that surprised me exceedingly. Marian wished very much for me to come and spend the afternoon with her.

However much one dislikes an individual it is hardly in human nature to refuse a request to spend an afternoon with her if she is sick and suffering and asks for your presence as a favor. I wonder now what all the rest of my life would have been if I had hardened my heart and refused to go to Marian Farley.

The ravages of disease have a pathos that wins respect; the ravages of drink turn the human face into a caricature of itself. Marian, propped up on white pillows and wearing a wonderful pink crepe de chine negligee, was a travesty of herself.

"Great game they're playing with me, isn't it, Connie?" she laughed. "Rush me around for a week to theatres and teas and drops all under the careful surveillance of little Miss Wallis, and then when I find I can't stand the racket any longer poke me into bed still under the careful surveillance of the same efficient young person. Not much chance for me to exert my individuality, is there?"

THE TERRIBLE HABIT

I shuddered a bit at the way Marian was by innuendo and suggestion skirting the problem of her weakness. Suddenly a queer, sharp look came into her eyes.

"It's an awfully enervating day—wouldn't you like something to drink? Just ring and ask Judson to bring us some whiskey and soda."

"Oh, I couldn't, Marian. You don't send Lenore away this afternoon and get me here just for that?" I questioned.

The look of shrewd calculation in Marian's eyes changed slowly to one of bitter antagonism and then hardened to cold, sneering derision. Suddenly she was no longer a pathetic victim of a habit decked the means of satisfying that habit—but instead a bitter, tortured woman on the verge of wresting some crude satisfaction from life.

But what that satisfaction was I did not guess, and if I had I wonder if I would have tried to stop Marian Farley from telling me what she thirsted to impart.

"We're two in a boat, Connie—two women with wrecked lives," she sneered in sudden vindictive triumph. "The same thing has done it to both of us—marrying the wrong man. Harvey Blake loved you—he might have been decent if he'd gotten you. And I—I was meant for Peter. Second best wouldn't do for me—not my second best nor Harvey's. And after I got into the mess and it wrecked me, I tried to float myself out with strong waters. Now, how are you going to get out?"

She settled back on the pillows almost as if she were spent, and looked at me with sombre eyes in a burnt-out face.

CONNIE IS STUPEFIED

"Get out of what?" I stammered, like the silly fool five years of jealousy and suspicion and morbid introspection had made of me. Even as I said it I recognized the fact that Constance Elliott, "the best settlement worker in New York," would have known how to handle a drink-crazed woman—and that Constance Drayton, jealous wife and ineffectual mother, was not able to cope with Marian Farley at all.

"Oh, I suppose it's really wine that has wrecked my life," said Marian. "But it's lack of understanding of that wonderful husband of yours that's going to wreck yours. Peter Drayton needed a different woman from you, Connie—he needed a woman who loved him enough to think about him first and herself last—a woman with enough real maternal instinct to make her mother her husband as well as her children.

"You've loved yourself first all the time—you've always wondered if Peter was giving you enough love—if you were getting a square deal. . . . A doctor's wife had to be a helpmeet—you've been a drag.

"I won't listen," I cried wildly. "You shan't get me here and abuse me like this. I'll go."

"You'll go? And leave me alone? And undo Peter's work? Oh, no! If there's nobody to watch me I'll get up and forage for a drink, and the last four weeks will have gone for nothing. You'll stay, I think, and you'll listen, too. You know that however hateful what I'm telling you is you'd better hear me out and learn some of the things you need to know."

"Marian, you hate me—you tried to harm my little sister Betty, and now you want to undermine the one thing that I've got left in all the world—my faith in my own love for Peter."

"The one thing you have left—your love—always yourself and yourself. It's time you stopped being a petty child and grew to be a woman, Connie Drayton."

I started. Peter had called me a child and pleaded with me to try to be a woman. Marian had found a way to arrest my attention—I listened with mind and heart.

THE REPROACH TERRIBLE

"You haven't given Peter what he wanted, ever. You haven't tried to understand his work or his nature. You've been jealous of every pretty woman he looked at. You've never thought of him in terms of the temptations he might have been strong enough to withstand. You've always thought of him as yielding. You have fairly nagged him into yielding.

"And he's been decent and true to you in spite of his own nature that craved the beautiful, when your own surly, suspicious face and your whimpering couldn't have seemed very beautiful. I didn't hold him, either, but then I married another man and wrecked myself with drink and never really got into his life at all.

"He might have married me if you hadn't come along; we would have been happy if he had. I hate you for taking him away from me, and I think I'm glad that he is about ready to stop being loyal to a wife who doesn't deserve it.

"He's found the one woman—she understands his work and his ambition and his nature. He'll go to her in the end—go wherever she gets over thinking her whole life has to be spent in gratitude to you."

I started with a wild feeling of premonition, almost expecting, almost knowing exactly what was coming next.

"Great game they're playing with me, Connie, isn't it?" she laughed.

"Lenore's the mate—he'll go to her some day," said Marian.

And with the agony of her bitterly, cruelly true words tearing at my heart I had to sit by her side through two long hours, and even while I remembered the part jealousy had played in my life, I had to fight how jealousy, the wildest, maddest torment I had ever known.

Peter loved Lenore—she was his mate. The world would sneer at me for a deserted wife who could not hold her husband's love—and I, with an empty, aching heart, would long for the man whose love I had owned once and had forfeited.

At last Lenore came and in a daze I staggered from the room and the house.

The next instalment of this interesting serial will appear on Thursday.

Helen and Warren Get an Invitation to Go to a Studio Tea

Copyright, 1915, International News Service.

"EVERY time I think of it it makes me furious," said Helen, putting on her hat before the mirror.

"You get furious entirely too easily," scoffed Warren, as he examined his afternoon suit minutely. It was Sunday and they were going down to a studio tea at Frances Knowles' studio.

"But, dear, you might have told me about it."

"I have explained six times already that I forgot all about it. I told you once that you simply must stop charging, and you know you didn't keep your promise."

"I did, Warren, until we went away suddenly. Then I had to have things."

Warren was silent while he pulled his cuff links. "You might have given a little for me," he grumbled. "It's your fault that we are going to this shindig; I don't want to go."

Helen was wisely still. She knew that when Warren said was

This sickness will enable him to secure an indefinite leave of absence from the Senate when Congress convenes, it is expected.

GIVEN UP PRACTICE.

He has given up his law practice in Concord, and he has been quoted as saying he would sacrifice everything, even to resigning from the Senate, rather than to appear in court in this case.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis separated more than a year ago, and at that time Mrs. Hollis went with her children to Munich, returning shortly afterward.

Mrs. Hollis is twelve years her husband's senior. Major Abijah Hollis, father of the Senator, commented on their marital difficulties.

"About a year ago I learned that there was trouble between Henry and his wife, Grace. They both came to me and wanted to tell me their stories. I shooed them away, and refused to listen to them. Far be it for me to take sides between a man and his wife.

"The truth of the matter is that they couldn't live together without a continual clashing of temperaments. When you bring flint and steel together you are bound to get some sparks.

"Not more than a quarter of the marriages today are really happy, though, generally one or the other wants to be the boss, and, in the case of two refined, high-principled people like my son and Grace they simply could not pull together with their decidedly different points of view."

Judge Branch this afternoon issued an order returnable October 15.

NOTICE IN PAPERS.

Through the inability of court officials to locate Senator Hollis peradventure no order was issued to serve notice on Senator Hollis by publishing the petition in a Concord newspaper. A copy of the paper to be sent to Senator Hollis' last known address, which is the Senate chamber at Washington.

Senator Hollis is also enjoined from disposing of any of his property or real estate until final judgment in the proceedings.

Mrs. Hollis in her petition says:

"Mr. Hollis abandoned me on or about June 29, 1912. I am now living at Princeton, N. J., on account of the precarious condition of my daughter's health.

"Since my husband abandoned me he paid me monthly $150 until July, 1915, when he reduced the monthly payment to $100, and since July has paid me nothing nor contributed anything to my support, except the monthly rental of $40 from our Concord homestead. I have no other income except the $40."

SAVE YOUR HAIR AND BEAUTIFY IT WITH DANDERINE

Spend 25 cents! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Try this! Hair gets beautiful, wavy and thick in few moments.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now? For sale by Riker-Jaynes and all reliable druggists.—Advertisement.

Change from Oil to Gas Is Almost Fatal

GLOUCESTER, Oct. 5.—A change from oil lamp to gas nearly cost Domingo Goains his life today. Now Domingo knows that gas should not be blown out. Domingo came to Mrs. Rosa Filha's boarding house at No. 9 Herrick street a month ago, taking a room with oil lighting. Two weeks ago Domingo went away with the fishing fleet, returning last night. Mrs. Filha transferred him to a better room, one with gas. She lighted the gas for him when he came in. At 7 o'clock Domingo was found unconscious in bed. At 1.30, when he was revived enough to talk, he said weakly: "I blew out the light."

A twenty-five miles wind was blowing, accompanied by rain, and it was impossible to see whether any one was clinging to the rigging or whether the crew had left the vessel.

GRAPHIC STORY OF KILLING IN WARREN CASE

A graphic story of the shooting of Walter G. Greene, a Newton restaurateur, and Ruby H. Stewart, a waitress, was told today by Martin Burns, a drug clerk, in the Middlesex Superior Criminal Court, at the trial of Charles E. Warren, an Allston chauffeur, charged with murdering Greene.

Burns was the fourth witness. He said:

"I entered Greene's restaurant about 1 o'clock and sat at a table opposite Warren, with my back to the kitchen door. Miss Stewart took my order, went to the kitchen and returned in a minute with some bread and butter. Then she started back to the kitchen.

"Suddenly Warren produced a revolver, raised it just above the edge of the table and fired three shots while sitting. Then he jumped up and started rapidly toward the kitchen, with the revlover in his right hand.

RAN FOR DOOR.

"I ran for the door. As I ran I looked over my shoulder to see if I had a chance to get out safely, and I saw Mr. Greene in the kitchen doorway with both hands up in the air. Then I heard another shot and Greene dropped.

"I ran out and up Pelham street, where I met Miss Stewart on a lawn. She was covered with blood and hysterical.

"During the whole affair Warren did no talking—he said nothing that I heard. When he stood in the kitchen door he had a baffled look in his eyes."

Medical Examiner George L. West, Mrs. Effie Bearse, a cook, and Francis H. Kendal, county engineer, preceded Burns as witnesses.

False teeth, spectacles, bullet-riddled pans, cartridge shells—empty and loaded—photographs, a lense and a straw hat were among the government exhibits introduced today.

EXPECT INSANITY PLEA.

The trial is before Judge Raymond. In his opening address to the jury today District Attorney Corcoran said:

"After some conversation with my learned brother I am justified in assuming that the attorneys for the defence will attempt to show that Warren, the defendant, was insane at the time of the shooting. The government, acting on its right, will not at this time take up the matter of insanity, but will take it up later if necessary."

Medical Examiner George L. West, the first witness, described the fatal wound that killed Greene. He said the bullet entered the head over the right ear and came out over the left ear.

Mrs. Effie Bearse, the next witness, was a cook in Greene's restaurant. She identified photographs introduced by the government.

Dr. Isador H. Coriat, alienist, was in court.

Miss Ruby Stewart, wounded when Greene was killed, was among the sixty witnesses sworn by the State.

TRADE BOYCOTT FILENE-PLAN TO END WAR

Edward A. Filene of Boston today addressed the Cleveland, Ohio, Chamber of Commerce on "Economic Conditions After the War and American Business Men." He predicted that a world-wide economic war of unparalleled severity will follow the close of the European conflict and outlined a policy of non-intercourse to be followed against any recalcitrant nation that should in the future go to war without submitting its complaints to an international court.

He said in part: "The statesmen of the world, the internationalists and thinking men of the world are almost unanimous that the machinery for the substitution of law for war should consist of:

1—An international court for settlement of all judicial questions—that is questions which can be judged by law.

2—An international court of conciliation for all other questions.

3—Some form of force to compel nations to submit disputes to these tribunals before going to war.

4—International conferences for making or amending international law.

"In dealing with economic non-intercourse we should bear in mind that this plan takes effect automatically when nations go to war. It is important to keep this in mind because it is sometimes argued that non-intercourse would be a more expensive weapon than war. Whereas, it is to be noted that no nation goes to war without enforcing non-intercourse against its enemy. No nation, for instance, trades with a nation with which it is at war, and in the present war the economic boycott has been carried much further."

They Paint Cod Red and Call It Salmon in N. Y.

You may paint, you may color,
The cod as you will,
The color of T-Wharf
Will cling to it still.
—Ballad of Salmon Aristocracy.

Making an insipid imitation of the famous Boston BAKED beans by boiling them into a watery mess, and actually getting away with it with the uninitiated, was bad enough, but now New York has gone and painted Boston's own sacred codfish pink to make it masquerade as "Alaskan salmon."

This new sacrilege was discovered by New York's own Health Board. Three hundred pounds of the painted cod, all labelled salmon, were seized at a cold storage plant in New York. The inspectors thought they had found a new species of salmon, not because of the shape of the suspected fish, but because of the intense color, to say nothing of the smell.

So samples were analyzed and dissected. The outer layer of fish was found to be red, shading through pink to clear white in the centre.

It happened, just by chance, that a Bostonian came in, solving the mystery. He pointed out, in spite of his horror, that the "new salmon" was painted, PAINTED cod.

$3,000,000 Conduit Plan for Fall River

FALL RIVER, Oct. 5.—Plans for a $3,000,000 system of conduits, in a form said to be unique in modern engineering, have been presented the city government by a commission which has been considering the best means of providing a plentiful supply of water for drinking and industrial purposes for this city, and of obviating sewerage troubles in the Quequechan River. The commission reported that it was the opinion of consulting engineers that a three-way conduit was needed.

SUFFRAGISTS ACCUSE "L" DIRECTORS

That at least three directors of the "L" are out to cripple the equal suffragists plans for their big parade on Saturday of next week, because of intense anti-suffrage beliefs, was the direct charge made by Mrs. Gertrude Leonard at a hearing before the Boston Street Commissioners today.

General Bancroft, president of the "L," with Directors Gaston and Prendergast, were the three men named. It was charged that a protest filed by the "L" against allowing the parade to pass over a certain route, practically resulted from the anti-suffragist opinions of these three street railway officials.

"The Elevated knew that we had made application for the original parade route on August 19, but didn't raise any objection until this," Mrs. Leonard asserted. "It is a well known fact that President Bancroft of the road, as well as Directors Gaston and Prendergast, are bitterly opposed to equal suffrage. They evidently thought to cripple our parade plans by this eleventh hour objection, because of their personal opposition to our movement."

Mrs. Leonard, who is the president of the Massachusetts Women's Suffrage Association, also stated that their proposed parade route is now printed on 25,000 posters, for the guidance of their friends and supporters, and that any change in the route would tend to injure those plans.

SHIFT BOLES TO THE HARVARD BACKFIELD

The time has come, you know it's true
When sport fans hate the sight
Of anything but baseball dope,
Of course they might be right.

But football dopesters must exist,
Despite the fact, don't cuff.
We'll be as brief as possible,
Kind friends, pray bear with us.

It is absolutely necessary, however, that each day something be said of the Harvard football team and its experings behind the wholly inhospitable closed gates of the Stadium. Every sane man will admit that unless the "thought waves for good" are kept in motion, the Crimson eleven is just as apt to get a bad case of the blues, and that would never do.

Witness the editorial from the Yale News about the lack of thought waves or student support for the Eli eleven, which is blamed partially for the defeat of the Blue Bull-Dog by the Virginians last Saturday.

This column does not take the responsibility for the thought wave idea. That was sprung in all its virile glory by Head Coach Haughton himself several years ago on the eve of a Yale game, which incidentally ended with the altogether lovely score of 9 to 0.

In the meantime the Crimson warriors pursue the nimbly elusive pigskin on Soldiers Field. All kinds of things are happening within the Stadium these days. In the first place there's a young scrimmage going on behind the closely barred gates this afternoon. This, however, is not for the eyes of the common herd. The latter term is used advisedly.

REGULARS HAVE REST.

The regulars had a soft time yesterday, some of them not reporting at all, while those that did lounged about in that luxurious ease and idleness which made the Emperors Nero and Honorius to be known as the biggest loafers in history.

Of course it was a pretty hard grind for some of them, to have to go through a whole game and a hard one at that, thus early in the season.

It has never been clear to the writer's mind, however, why it was any worse for eleven Harvard players to go through a whole game against a lighter eleven, than it was for the players of the visiting team, who were usually outweighed right merrily, to stick at it straight through to be the butt of fresh relays of Harvard men. This, however, is unquestionably heresy, so we'll lay off it a bit.

Probably the most interesting occurrence on Soldiers Field of late days is the shifting of "Billy" Boles, the former Boston Latin School quarterback, from his old position to halfback.

It is not risking one's official reputation to say appreciable degree to predict that he will be heard from this year. When he was heard from by name for himself, not only by his skillful generalship and excellent all around ability as an attacker of the gridiron sport, but by his goal kicking prowess.

While there are a couple of men on the Harvard squad this year who are trying to bust into goal kicking fame, none have behind them the record of Boles. Last year he was ineligible for the freshmen eleven. He has gained weight somewhat, and is rapidly rounding into real varsity timber.

BOLES KICKS A GOAL.

The hot scrimmages between the subs and the second eleven resulted in a win for the former by a scant touchdown and goal from placement. The former was made by Lyman, the latter, who ran seventy-five yards on a score after intercepting one of the second's forward passes. Later Boles drop-kicked a goal from the thirty-five-yard line. His day's average was fifty-five, as he failed to negotiate one from a slightly harder angle and a longer distance.

Wallace, last year's regular center, was in the scrimmage when Team B of the varsity proceeded to take the regular fall out of "Bob" Guild's passively submissive second team.

Wallace is at present ineligible for the eleven. There does not seem to be much likelihood of the Powers that Be at Harvard taking any action on his case for some time to come. His return to the Crimson eleven is needed.

While Wiggin, last year's freshman centre, is putting up a scrappy, snappy game at centre, he lacks both the experience and weight of Wallace. With the latter back in the lineup it would be a much simpler matter for Haughton to whip his forward line into some semblance of last year's cyclone machine.

Wallace will be kept hard at it, so that whenever he is released from academic captivity he will be able to get right into the thick of the fray. This probably won't be much before the Tiger game, however.

Nearly 200 Oarsmen Report at Harvard

Nearly 200 men reported for first crew practice at Harvard and from all appearances a great effort will be made to regain lost laurels on the Thames. Ninety of the candidates were for the varsity crews.

With the exception of three freshman and four varsity crews, the oarsmen were sent to Weld boathouse for their training.

The make-up of the two varsity boats that rowed was as follows:

Boat A—Stroke, Brown; 7, Quimby; 6, Pope; 5, Richardson; 4, Franklin; 3, Moody; 2, G. Morgan; bow, Busk; Coxswain, Cameron.

Boat B—Stroke, Lund; 7, Talcott; 6, Culbert; 5, Stebbins; 4, Coolidge; 3, Cabot; 2, Hovrich; bow, Potter; coxswain, Kreger.

KILL OFF 'TESSIE' IS PHILLY PLOT

POLO GROUNDS, N. Y., Oct. 5.—Philadelphia is devising ways and means to exterminate "Tessie," the official war chant of the Red Sox rooters, which proved so successful in the 1909 and 1912 World's Series.

The advance guard of baseball folks are beginning to show up for the big show and Manager Carrigan and his players were much amused when they learned this morning that Philadelphia rooters have gone on record as declaring that they will use forcible means, if necessary, to hush up the Boston "fans" as soon as the first strain of "Tessie" is played by their band.

The Phila bugs evidently have it figured that the elimination of "Tessie" will help Grover Cleveland Alexander, "Actus" Cravath, Fred Luderus and Pat Moran's other star players in getting the Phillies off with a triumph.

Carrigan was told by a well-meaning baseball man at the Hotel Ansonia this morning, where several dozen magnates, managers and players of renown called on the Red Sox pilot and his warriors, that Philadelphia was all het up over the ticket squabble and that the Boston "fans" were in for a lot of "booing" and "guying" the minute they are heard from Friday afternoon.

Their band will not be exactly assassinated, but the arrangements are to put it out of commission, even if force is needed, so the people, which has never gone back on Boston, cannot be played by the Boston band making the trip to Philadelphia.

Princeton Drilled in Fundamentals

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 5.—Coach Rush is continuing his policy of instructing the Princeton squad in the fundamentals of the game and leaving the more intricate plays for the future.

Glick, Ames and Gennett have been given a short "vacation" from practice following the Rutgers game, bowled temporarily at quarterback. The only other change noted is that of Shea from end to the backfield, where he is kept busy practicing drop kicks.

Special attention will be given from now on to the offensive angle of the game. The failure of Princeton on the attack Saturday was easily discernible even by the layman in the grandstands.

The squad was kept at work until nearly dark yesterday. Those who were not selected for the first two games are set to practicing on the recovery of fumbles and the running of "broken fields."

CARRIGANS HAVE BEST CATCHERS, SAYS FULLERTON

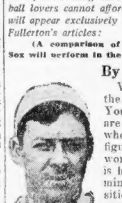
SOX HAVE STRONGER STAFF OF BACKSTOPS THAN PAT MORAN

	Value in Offense.	Value in Defense.	Value in Season.	Value in Series.
Boston	.651	.708	.782	.797
Philadelphia	.633	.684	.755	.767

This is the ninth of a series of articles on the World's Series by Fullerton, the famous baseball statistician. Mr. Fullerton is recognized as one of the leading authorities on the national pastime and consequently baseball lovers cannot afford to miss a single article of this great series which will appear exclusively in the Boston AMERICAN. Here is the ninth of Mr. Fullerton's articles:

(A comparison of how the catchers of Philadelphia and of the Red Sox will perform in the World's Series.)

By HUGH FULLERTON.



Cady.

Killifer.

We have reached the next to the most important position. You must remember that these are individual values, and that when we come to reduce these figures to the final value, the worth of each man in defence is his individual worth plus or minus the importance of his position. The importance of the catcher is much more in defence than that of any of the regulars we have studied, almost three times the worth of a left fielder, for instance.

These figures would be more satisfactory to Philadelphia "fans" if Bill Killifer was in his best condition. The damaging of that sterling athlete's throwing arm was something of a blow to Moran's hopes and his long lay-off shaved Killifer's average considerably and brings up Burns' importance even if Killifer gets into condition to catch up to near his standard.

To reach the value of a catching staff for a World's Series, it is necessary to pursue a different method from that used in computing the value of the other players in such a series. We cannot reach the value by figuring how much Cady is worth as a batter, base runner, etc., as backstop, thrower, foul grabber, watcher of bases, worker with pitchers, blocker of runners, etc.; we cannot pursue the same course with Carrigan and Thomas, and divide by three.

What we must do is to figure all points of offensive and defensive strength of each man, then figure how many games each will catch, Jimmy Archer on the bench isn't worth as much as Tom Needham would be catching two innings.

To reach this conclusion is not hard with Philadelphia. I have figured four parts Killifer and two parts Cady, two Thomas and one Carrigan, on the theory that the Red Sox manager will be there steadying pitchers, or will pinch hit in some game and then catch the wind pad.

Cady will, of course, do all the work with Wood, and Carrigan is not likely to start himself except with Ruth, as catching naturally detracts from his value in handling the team and directing its play. He will catch Ruth's game and perhaps be in parts of other games. Thomas is a 5 to figure, but he will work with one or two of the left handers unless they show symptoms of weakness. Carrigan will not let him go far if the pinchers begin to look unsteady.

Killifer's Arm Is Not in Best of Condition.

Killifer undoubtedly would do all Philadelphia's catching but for the fact that he has been out of commission, and Moran might fear that he would be overworked or knocked out entirely, and he may use Burns early. Killifer's arm has been in worse condition than many suspected, and even now it is far from being strong.

Let us study them individually. Carrigan is the dean, of course. He is not what he was. He has slowed up, he doesn't hit the ball the way he used to and he was slow to start with and is now a heavy slugger. He is a dangerous man at bat, in spite of low percentage, and always was one of those fellows who cracked the ball at the opportune moment. He has a lot of confidence in Bill and is likely to send himself to bat in a pinch, and when a manager does that he would better make good. He still is the same old Bill in working with pitchers, and not a little of the great success of his pitching staff has been due to his patience with and his encouragement of trying youngsters.

We will study Carrigan at closer range in the study of managers, and now consider him as a catcher only. He is a grand backstop, steady as a rock, cool, and a very fair thrower even now. He knows batters and works with his pitchers well, or, rather, makes them work with him. His calm steadiness helps nervous, skittish pitchers not a little.

Cady, who is the real catcher of Boston, is a huge fellow, much after the Carrigan type save that he is a much harder hitter. He is the best gwatter of the catchers under scrutiny, and is liable to hit one a block. He slams most of his hits in one direction, which handicaps him, but even then he you get a big, slow-moving fellow who takes about as long to reach first as it does Cobb to take two bases, and who still hits the good pitchers, you have something.

With his weight and strength, Cady is the ideal man to catch speed pitching. His chief reputation as a catcher has been due to the fact that he has caught "Smoky Joe" Wood, which is one of the hardest tasks in the business, especially when Wood is a bit wild. Cady handled Wood to perfection and he and Wood have become baseball affinities, and since Wood does his work in two games, Cady becomes correspondingly important as a factor in this series.

Thomas Has Done Much Work Behind the Bat.

Thomas has been doing more catching this season than either Cady or Carrigan, and his handling of the left handers has been excellent. He has allowed Carrigan to stay closer to the bench and devote more time to running the team. He is not a great catcher, although he is faster than either Cady or Carrigan and throws very well, even if erratically.

It is well for Boston that the Phillies are not a base running ball club. A team of speed boys might upset that catching staff, which has not had much practice in throwing this season, chiefly because their pitchers did not allow opposing runners to reach first. It is a rule of baseball that a player must reach first before he steals second and that kept Detroit from beating the Red Sox out of the pennant because Leonard and Red Sox pitchers do not hold runners close to the bases.

In offensive strength we find the Boston catchers leading the Phillies by a comfortable margin, and they also are ahead a bit in defensive operations and on the season's work. For records in the coming series Philadelphia makes a better showing. This is because of Killifer—always provided he is in playing condition.

Bill Killifer is a magnificent catcher. If he were at the top of his form just now it would be a question as to whether or not he would lead in the figures. Of course, Killifer lost caste when he jumped to the Federal League and then jumped back. It hurt him. He has not received the press agenting or the admiration since then that was lavished upon him before. You don't read so much about Killifer, but the fact that his name is not so prominent in the papers does not detract from his worth out there in that whitewashed angle.

Killifer is one of those hustling, agile, cat-like moving catchers that have become so popular in modern baseball. He is quick, a flash thrower, making quick and unexpected pegs around the bases, and he backstops well. He handles Alexander's speed and Rixey's uncertain shoots with equal facility, and he catches all styles of pitching, which, oddly enough, the Boston catchers prefer not to do. Killifer has more speed than any of the catchers of either team and is likely to take a chance at those fellows who cracked the ball at the opportune moment. He has a lot of confidence in Bill and is likely to send himself to bat in a pinch, and when a manager does that he would better make good. He still is the same old Bill in working with pitchers, and not a little of the great success of his pitching staff has been due to his patience with and his encouragement of trying youngsters.

We will study Carrigan at closer range in the study of managers, and now consider him as a catcher only. He is a grand backstop, steady as a rock, cool, and a very fair thrower even now. Cravath Says Phils Are Full of Fight By "Cactus" Cravath,

Star Slugger of Phillies.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—The Phillies are full of fight. Every man on the team is out to win the World's Series from the Red Sox. It is impossible to pick the winner in such a short series, but we have figured out every step of our plans and will fight accordingly.

Alexander and Chalmers will surely star. As for myself, I have been too busy trying to win each day to give much thought to the Big Brush.

I'll take my swings, you can count of this much and no more. I might blow up the whole club, but I have hopes, and each year sees a new unpicked hero.

NEWTON IN CLASH WITH QUINCY HIGH

GAMES TODAY.

Mechanics Arts at Everett.
Dorchester at Concord.
Abington at Brockton.
Revere at Medford.
Quincy at Weston.
Milton at Hyde Park.
Worcester North at Brookline.

Though the school football card for this afternoon is a short one it contains games which should be close and interesting.

Quincy High is not the team that it was a year ago, but neither is Newton for that matter, which makes the prospects for a win about 50-50. A year ago these two schools put up a peach of a contest, the decision finally going to Newton.

Already Brookline High has played two games and won both by the margin of a single touchdown, pulling out a victory in both cases through the effort of Quarterback Collier, who has a quick eye for detecting a loose ball.

Up in Worcester the eleven are not such as are ordinarily seen in these parts. Soccer and track athletes have a drag on the material in the Fall there and the football teams suffer as a result.

It has been a long time since a Worcester eleven took the measure of a local outfit. With Brookline bolstered up in the line and backfield and possessing such an able director as Collier it is likely that Worcester North, the opponent will go back to the folks at home with an unpleasant tidings.

Myer Pam and Milton put on the other attraction. Boston Latin pummelled the lads from Ward 25 in a free and easy sort of way two weeks ago, but Milton, too, has found tough going in all of its contests to date.

The Poole boys having left Milton, the athletic team seem lost. Lee, Pond and Matthews are seasoned players, and with Hyde Park in a weakened condition through lack of practice, the Milton team should win.

Wakefield Runners Win.

Wakefield High's cross-country team won its first race of the season, defeating Peabody High, 15 to 40. Goodwin of Wakefield won the race over a course of two and a quarter miles in 11 minutes and 39 seconds.

NEWTON WINS FROM BROOKLINE

Newton High defeated Brookline High in a football game on Newton Field yesterday afternoon by a score of 7 to 0. The game was hard fought throughout, and the result was in doubt until the last minute of play. Newton's touchdown was made in the second period by Captain Hall, who carried the ball over the line after a series of line plunges by Hall and Fullback Hunt. Newton's goal was kicked by Hall.

Brookline had the ball on Newton's 20-yard line when the game ended.

BALDWIN MEETS WHITE IN GO TONIGHT

ATLAS A. A. PROGRAM.

Matty Baldwin, Charlestown, vs. Charlie White, Chicago, twelve rounds.

Joe White, South Boston, vs. Patsy DeLucca, North End, eight rounds.

Battling Carroll, Lawrence, vs. Charley Sheppard, New York, six rounds.

Battling McFarland, Providence, vs. Cy Goodwin, South End, six rounds.

MATTY BALDWIN, the New England lightweight champion, expects to halt Charley White's winning streak at the Atlas A. A. tonight. Baldwin and White are scheduled to clash in a twelve-round battle.

The contest has aroused an unusual amount of interest among the "fans." White has already stepped three of New England's best lightweights, Eddie Murphy, Gilbert Gallant and Freddy Yellin have all been easy for the hard-hitting lightweight from the West. White now wants to add Baldwin to his list of victims. He is anxious to prove that even the daddy of the local 133-135 pound glove men is not in his class.

WHITE has naturally been made a heavy favorite for tonight's encounter. He is one of the greatest lightweights performing in the ring today. Many experts declare he is the logical opponent for Freddy Welsh, the lightweight boss. They say that White would have an excellent chance of beating the title holder in a fistic over the twenty-round route.

There is not a lightweight in the world who can punch as hard as White. Terry McGovern was a sweet puncher when he was at his best, but Terry did not have anything on the White of today. Charley is not a very aggressive boxer. He is slow in getting warmed up, but when he has once staggered an opponent with a solid left hook, he is a greatest finisher in the business. As soon as his rival weakens, the Chicago boxer changes from a quiet, easy, good boxer into a ring demon who slashes out with deadly left and right-hand blows.

BALDWIN expects to give White a surprise tonight. He is confident that he will not only go the twelve rounds, but that he will also force White to extend himself. Matty is not afraid of White's left hook. He claims he will keep inside of the Windy City youth's blow and wear him down with body slashes.

Matty is a much better ring general than White. He is much faster than the Chicago whirlwind. These advantages will make it possible for him to pile up numerous points. If he can manage to keep out of the way of White's left hook, he will have a fine chance to go the distance route, perhaps get a draw.

JOE WHITE, South Boston's hard-hitting welterweight, will exchange punches with Patsy DeLucca of the North End in the semi-final match of eight rounds. White and DeLucca are rivals and are expected to furnish an interesting session. White wants to knock out DeLucca, as he is trying to land a bout with Mike Gleason. DeLucca is also eager to grab off the high honors. There will also be a couple of six-round preliminary bouts.

Old Dartmouth Men to Aid in Coaching

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 5.—Walter McCormack, '96, and Byrnes, '11, will come here to aid Coach Cavanaugh to develop the Dartmouth football team.

Grass drills, dummy practice and preliminary work was given the candidates yesterday. The scrubs and regulars who did not play a full game against Maine were given three quarter-hour scrimmages, in which "Sid" Holbrook made the only touchdown after a 15-yard run. Butts, the Worcester Academy end, was in the scrimmage against the regulars.

CONSUL SKINNER CALLED TO U. S. FROM LONDON

WASHINGTON Oct. 5.—Robert P. Skinner, the United States consul-general in London, has been summoned to Washington for consultation on the trade situation existing between the United States and Great Britain.

Skinner's reports were recently adversely criticised in a note from Great Britain to the State Department.

Before answering this note, State Department officials thought it best to consult Consul-General Skinner.

On his return here Mr. Skinner will confer not only with Secretary Lansing but with Counsellor Lee and the foreign trade advisers, who are handling the negotiations with Great Britain over contraband.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular in the last hour and the New York list had partially recovered from a rather severe reaction earlier in the afternoon. Bethlehem Steel sold up to 460¾, its highest record price. Other highest records had been attained by Pittsburgh Coal and Continental Can, 5; 2:15 gains included American Can 5¾, Coal Products 4, Bethlehem 5¾ at 100½, Studebaker 2½, Westinghouse ¾, Willys-Overland 12, Distillers 2¾, Amerada ¾, Rock Island ¾, Valen Pacific ¾, St. Paul ¾, Reading ¾, New Haven ¾, N. Y. Central ¾, Canadian Pacific ¾, Atchison 1¾ and Consolidated Can ¾.

Among declines were Lackawanna Steel 2¾, U. S. Rubber 2¾, Republic Crucible 4¾, Colorado Fuel ¾, Car & Foundry 1, American Loco 2¾, Baldwin ¾, Tennessee Copper ¾, Utah Con ¾, General Electric 2½, Southern Pacific 1¾ and Northern Pacific ¾.

The Boston market was influenced with New York and did not rally. Declines here included Woolen, common 2¾, preferred 1, American Zinc ¾, Alaska Gold ½, Calumet and Arizona 1, Calumet & Hecla ¾, Copper Range 1¾, Granby 1, Greene-Cananea ¾, North Butte ¾, Osceola 1, Quincy ¾, New Haven ¾, Boston & Maine ¼ and Edison 1½.

NEW YORK BEGAN IRREGULAR.

At the opening New York was irregular, but selling pressure soon relaxed and the tone improved. The price trend was indefinite during most of the time until afternoon. As usual war industrials were the most active stocks. Within a few minutes rails as a class worked higher. Some were strong, including Canadian Pacific, New York Central, Norfolk & Western and Reading. Coppers were firm, but quite on the whole. Inspiration was strong. The price range was narrow, compared with usual fluctuations of war order issues. Car & Foundry opened more than six points off because President Eaton said his corporation's war orders included only 47,500,000. Willys-Overland sold at its highest record price in the first hour. So did Miami, the dividend rate having been increased to $1 a year. There was heavy realizing in this stock. By the time the majority of active issues showed gains. Among the strongest during the second hour were Studebaker, General Electric, Baldwin, American Can and Distillers. The market was for less active than yesterday's. Transactions at noon totalled around 500,000 shares. Subscription to the Anglo-French loan has closed. It is estimated now that oversubscription amounts to $150,000,000. New England purchases are estimated at from $75,000,000 to $82,000,000. Depositors in New York, it is stated, have withdrawn $50,000,000 from savings banks to invest in the loan. Sterling exchange declined 5 points. Stock transactions there was more conservative spirit and some market leaders showed reactions. On the other issues has been greatly overdone. The tendency is banking and brokers are providing is to insist upon larger margins.

TRADING HERE NO BROADER.

There was no more breadth to the Boston market than there has been the recent rule. It opened fairly steady. Neither coppers nor zincs were in much demand. Nor was there a pair feature. The metal market situation was unchanged. Domestic buyers still are holding off. Export demand is steady. Zinc business is sheltered and lead is reported. In Lon spelter advanced 15s and lead declined 5s. 9d. Spot copper and futures were each off 15s., with electrolytic unchanged.

Injured on Elevator.

ASKS $18,935 FOR CARE OF BIGELOW

Seeking to recover four times as much as an auditor had allowed her, Mrs. Mary A. Dwyer has begun trial of her suit against the executors of the estate of Edwin M. Bigelow, who died at the age of eighty, in 1905.

She claims $17,735 for nursing and for providing food and clothes. The auditor, Hugh J. Scollin, had allowed her $4,865, less a credit of $150. Judge Lawton and a jury are hearing the case.

With the case is also on trial a suit of Mrs. Dwyer and of James H. Dwyer against the executors to recover on an alleged agreement with Mr. Bigelow on a 20 years' lease, alleged to have been given them in 1884 on the property at No. 43 Warrenton street, that at the expiration of that time he would buy one-third of the assessed values of such improvements as the premises as the defendants may have made.

In this suit the defendant executors have filed a declaration in bar in balance of $10,371, alleged to be due in rent of the properties at No. 43 Warrenton street and No. 24 Shawmut avenue, and other charges.

According to Auditor Joslin's report Mr. Bigelow was of markedly penurious habits. He practically lived in his home in his offices in the Niles building and for the last few years of his life became enfeebled because of the parsimonious care he and his executors to provide himself with necessary food.

Auditor Joslin found further that Mrs. Dwyer did actually attend Mr. Bigelow, for his wife was ill and he still she was entitled to $3,750 for such services, with a further $1,071 for supplies and delicacies and $224 for orderies.

Mayor Warned of Life in Letter Sent by Unknown Crank

Mayor Curley has received through the mail the following letter, without date or time:

"Hon. James Curley:

"Dear Sir—You are warned that your life is in danger.

"British agents, with the aid of members of the Black Hand Society, are responsible for the murders of several Irish people during the last week.

"There is a widespread plot against the Irish and German people. Warning has been given to the Irish guard, as they hope to strike terror in Boston by setting fires in the Irish districts.

"Prominent members of the Irish race are signaled out for death, Senator Germain especially.

Signed) "Portlander."

The Mayor had nothing to say other than to remark that it was a simple of letters that occasionally reach desk.

He received another letter, the second within a week, from the same signing himself Doctor, announcing that his second coming will be at 10 o'clock tomorrow and that unless the Mayor that he was prepared to sentence quite a group of prominent men to hell for eternity. The Mayor's comment was.

It would seem that the writers of these letters to keep away from the woods, as now is about the time the hunting season begins and they are gathering in their Winter supply of nuts.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

The opening of the Rockingham Park automobile show today brings to mind the fact that some twelve years ago the promoters of horse racing in Boston refused to permit a motor vehicle to enter its grounds.

In 1903 Harry Fondiet, George Lowe and the writer journeyed by motor car to the fair and on reaching the entrance to the vehicle outside of the grounds because of the likelihood of its frightening horses attached to vehicles that were parked in the yard opposite the ground and Fondiet and Lowe held an automobile show of their own.

Today, however, things are different. The motor vehicle is the favorite and the absolute exclusion of the horse, and the horse show is forced to try competitions with the motor car.

* * *

The majority of automobile dealers in Boston and New York yesterday morning, where they had been to see the Motor Cup race on Friday afternoon, and not Saturday. Very few of them remained over in the "big city."

* * *

The Massachusetts Highway Commission, through its chairman, Eugene N. Foss, announced that it has planned to carry its fight against reckless driving to the Legislature and would not overlook the fact that the motor laws are now sufficient to convict a motor operator of almost every crime in the calendar, even including the cardinal one. It is not new laws that is necessary so much as the enforcement of those now on the statute books of the State.

BABY IN BOSTON AFTER TRIP OF 13,000 MILES

John Connelly Loberg, five months, the youngest child ever to pass through the Panama canal, has arrived in Boston on the steamship Colusa, from Australia.

Almost every night since his birth at Sydney, N. S. W., last May, the boy has slept with the steamship that been rocking and rolling in the South Pacific, and later in the Atlantic.

Loberg is the son of Captain Loberg, commander of the Colusa, and with his mother died a year he has traveled 13,000 miles. It was said that he has probably broken all records for globe-trotting in his young life.

From Sydney the Colusa went to Port Pirie, another Australian port, where she loaded for Panama and Boston. Then she headed direct for the Panama canal.

Mrs. Loberg, the baby's mother, says that John's physical condition is proof positive that the salt air is the best tonic in the world for babies.

Captain Loberg is well known to sea-going Bostonians, for he was formerly commander of the White Star liner Cretic.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Opper and "The Witch's House"

As Mr. Opper Truly Says, We Still Retain Superstition as Vile and Cruel as the Superstition of Witches and Ghosts

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

On this Spot in America Lived "Granny" Redd, Officially Murdered as a Witch

WITH the sketch which we publish here Mr. Opper sends a suggestion for an editorial. His own letter is his best editorial.

We publish it.

Manhattan Beach, N. Y., Sept. 6, 1915.

Here is a little sketch which I made in pencil one day while out for a walk in Marblehead, and went over it with a pen afterward, in case you might want to make a plate of it. And here is the explanation:

It shows, as you see, a small vacant field at the corner of a road. This place was not far from where I was living. It is, I understand, the spot where stood the house of Mrs. Redd, known as "Granny" Redd, in 1692. At the time of the witchcraft mania in New England this old Marblehead woman was accused of being a witch, was taken to Salem, tried, convicted and "executed," in other words, murdered, as so many others were at that time. This is, I believe, a matter of historical record and appears in histories and articles about Marblehead. It struck me that you might see there a chance for one of your strong Boston AMERICAN editorials. The point would be that while this particular superstition is past, other bad superstitions still persist. Men still continue to believe that certain other men called "kings" and "emperors" have different blood in their veins called "royal blood" and must be put on thrones and allowed to declare war and have millions of their "subjects" killed. Men still believe that bloody and cruel wars are necessary. Men still believe that it is right to permit children to be worked to death and stunted in factories. You could, no doubt, think of other wrong delusions. Anyhow, I thought it was worth spending a few minutes on the sketch. Use it if you choose; if not, you won't mind my making the suggestion. Yours sincerely,

F. OPPER.

Of course, you understand the house shown in the sketch is not "Granny" Redd's. The vacant field is about where her house probably stood. There is a pond close by still called "Redd's Pond."

We no longer believe in witches, officially, but millions of children, before they are old enough to reason, have their minds filled with horrible superstitions, of which they rarely free themselves in after life.

The children are taught to believe in a God so vicious and cruel as to create human beings and then burn them forever in dreadful torment.

Human beings are taught by religion teachers, who might be better employed, to look up to their superiors humbly and take what is given, instead of using the intelligence that they have to better themselves and to humble arrogance and injustice.

The real progress that the race has made consists in this — MEN HAVE BEGUN TO GOVERN THEMSELVES. And where they govern themselves, instead of being governed by a king or a religious organization or a financial oligarchy, they do not at least officially recognize witches or divine right or any of the horrors on which the human race has been intellectually fed for centuries.

When Mr. Opper made the interesting sketch which we reproduce here he undoubtedly passed in his walk at Marblehead THE REAL CURE FOR SUPERSTITION—the public school.

Those that murdered old "Granny" Redd, in the name of the law, calling her "witch," would have hated a public school even more than they hated that woman.

And those who would like to keep alive all the horrors of ignorance and rule of the masses through superstition also hate the public school, more bitterly than the old Puritan New Englanders hated the witch.

The witch is gone, and other superstitions are going, AND THE PUBLIC SCHOOL IS HERE TO STAY. Thank God for it!

The Very Thing

Matinee idols have succeeded so well as film actors that we wonder why a number of comic opera tenors we know do not seek that avenue to popularity.

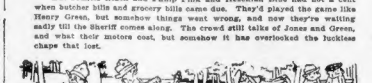
On the Dark and Sinister Other Hand

JOHNNY JONES bought Bunk Preferred before it went to par
And now he's got a new steam yacht, a big imported car.
A mansion at Pride's Crossing with a cellar full of wine,
And seven men to wait on him when he sits down to dine.
And everywhere that he appears he's hailed with loud acclaim
As War Stock Jones, the clever chap who beat the Wall Street game.

But Tommy Smith and Bobbie Brown and Aloysius White were sleeping on the benches on the Common last night. They also backed the war stocks game with all the cash they had, but didn't do as well as Jones—their luck, you see, was bad. It's chilly sleeping out of doors in shabby clothes this Fall, but there they slept all through the night, and no one cared at all.

HENRY GREEN, as all men know, made millions by the score,
By buying Shell-Game Common when it dropped to twenty-four.
The day the papers told about the cleanup he had made,
His brokers had to shut up shop to stop the rush of trade.
Conductors, waiters, office boys all hurried orders in,
In haste to make the millions they were certain they could win.

But Francis Black and Philip Pink and Hezekiah Blue had not a cent when butcher bills and grocery bills came due. They'd played the game like Henry Green, but somehow things went wrong, and now they're waiting sadly till the Sheriff comes along. The crowd still talks of Jones and Green, and what their motors cost, but somehow it has overlooked the luckless chaps that lost.



That's Not Enough, John

But no man need lack control
Of a splendid strength of soul.
—John Kendrick Bangs.

At this season of the year, however, he will not attract any attention if he lacks control of the old horsehide.

What Do They Mean, Christian?

The troops in the trenches have dropped "Tipperary" and are singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers," which song, save for its name and its words, must suit their purposes admirably.

Up-to-Date

A gang of train robbers held up a freight train near Buffalo and carried away the loot in ten motor trucks.

Turpin was a piker,
Kidd an amateur,
Jesse James an undergrad
In thieving, as it were.
When he goes a-robbing,
The bandit of today,
Takes along ten motor trucks
To haul the swag away.

When the modern robber
Makes a wholesale touch,
He's not content with jewelry
And rolls of cash and such.
He doesn't bother passengers,
But slyly lies in wait
And cleans up all the contents of
A ninety-box-car freight.

While the ancient scoundrel
Made a mighty name,
He was but a busher
In the holdup game
Though we do not favor
Violence and crimes,
We revere the criminal
Who's worthy of his times.

THIS is the fifth commandment of matrimony:

THOU SHALT NOT MAKE OF THYSELF THE ONE-WHO-MUST-BE-OBEYED, FOR, VERILY, FEW THERE BE WHO LOVE THEIR JAILERS.

There probably are no married couples in the world, no matter how loving or beloved, who do not have times and seasons when they wish they had the courage to smash their wedding rings, and tear up their marriage certificates, and make a break for their lost liberty.

It is then we marvel, not at the large number of divorces, but that divorce is not universal, and that poor, weak human nature has the strength to go on dragging its ball and chain when it could so easily break its fetters.

For there is no gainsaying the fact the average couple make of the holy estate nothing but a prison house, and that when they get married they get a life sentence with hard labor, with no commutation for good conduct, and no hope of being pardoned out.

"Oh, You Latch Key!"

And it is because people are beginning to realize that the married have written above their doorways, "Abandon freedom all ye who enter here," that men, and women also, are beginning to fight more and more shy of matrimony. Peaches and matinee heroes may look good to youths and maidens, but, oh, you latch key!

It is one of life's little ironies that we bring to the greatest crisis in our whole existence the least intelligence of which we are capable. We all know, for instance, the one undying passion of the human heart is for liberty. For it men fight and die, for it women become martyrs of sacrifice, giving those who are dearer than life to them.

Yet, knowing this, knowing freedom is the very breath of life to every man and woman with a soul, we deliberately proceed to wreck matrimony by making of it a penal institution, and setting up a tyrant on the hearth.

When the average man marries a woman he qualifies immediately as Head Jailer to her. He assumes the right to boss her incoming and outgoing; to regulate how much she shall pay for her clothes, and to say how many inches her gowns shall be cut out in the neck, and off at the bottom.

To Settle Her Opinions

More than that, he arrogates to himself the right to settle her opinions for her, and to decide whether she shall belong to this club or that; whether she shall be an outspoken suffragist, or merely sympathize secretly with the feminist movement.

Nor is the husband in much better case. Some more freedom of action he has than the wife, because she can't keep up with him and exercise her tyranny over him quite as easily as he can over her. But she does her conscientious best, and that best is hard enough to endure.

Not one married man in 100, no, not in 10,000, is free to stay down town of a night to dinner if he feels like it, or to pass an evening with his old cronies, or to go off to the theatre by himself, or to gratify any little whim of the kind. His jailer at home, who has given him a ticket of leave, to go out and pass the day tolling for her, is sitting up with her eye on the clock, ready to call time on him if he doesn't show up on the minute.

No Liberty in Home

Nor has the average married man any liberty in his own home. He can't smoke where he wants to, nor muss up the soft cushions, nor have a room of his own in which he can leave things scattered about the way he likes them.

He's not allowed to waste the money that would buy imported millinery on silly collections of butterflies, or beetles, or stamps. He's not permitted to invite the people he knew before marriage—and that his wife hated at sight—to the house to dinner. He hasn't got even a whole closet nor a comb and brush of his very own. His wife even buys his neckties for him, and decides on the kind of food that is good for his stomach.

Is it any wonder the poor matrimonial worms, male and female, turn at last? Is it surprising that too much wife or too much husband gets on the nerves of their poor victims? Is it to be wondered at that widows and widowers give such marvellous exhibitions of Christian resignation in bearing their losses?

The answer to the conundrum of how to be happy though married is comprised in one word, and that word is Freedom. Throw open the doors of the prison house you have made of domesticity, Mr. Husband and Mrs. Wife, and give your poor pining convict a breath of liberty.

In love we keep only what we give, and hold what we lose, and the way to keep a husband or wife from climbing over the fence is to leave the door wide open. Therefore, forget not the fifth commandment of matrimony: THOU SHALT NOT MAKE OF THYSELF THE ONE-WHO-MUST-BE-OBEYED, FOR, VERILY, FEW THERE BE WHO LOVE THEIR JAILERS.

War as Carlyle Saw It

WHAT, speaking in quite unofficial language, is the net purport and upshot of war? To my own knowledge, for example, there dwell and toil in the British village of Dumdrudge unwarlike some five hundred souls. From these, by certain "natural enemies" of the French, there are successively selected, during the French war, say thirty able-bodied men: Dumdrudge, at her own expense, has suckled and nursed them; she has not without difficulty and sorrow, fed them up to manhood, and even trained them to crafts, so that one can weave, another build, another hammer, and the weakest can stand under thirty stone avoirdupois. Nevertheless, amid much weeping and swearing, they are selected; all dressed in red; and shipped away at the public charges, some two thousand miles, or say only to the south of Spain; and fed there till wanted.

And now to that same spot, in the south of Spain, are thirty similar French artisans, from a French Dumdrudge, in like manner wending; till at length, after infinite effort, the two parties come into actual juxtaposition; and Thirty stands fronting Thirty, each with gun in his hand. Straightway the word "Fire!" is given; and they blow the souls out of one another; and in place of sixty brisk useful craftsmen the world has sixty dead carcasses, which it must bury, and new shed tears for.

Had these men any quarrel? Busy as the Devil is, not the smallest! They lived far enough apart; were the entirest strangers; nay, in so wide a Universe, there was even, unconsciously, by Commerce, some mutual helpfulness between them. How then? Simpleton! their Governors had fallen out; and, instead of shooting one another, had the cunning to make these poor blockheads shoot.—Thomas Carlyle in "Sartor Resartus."
